RED SOX IN SUNSHINE ONCE MORE

By MERTON E. BURKE.

American Correspondent with Red Sox on Coast to Coast Tour.

Merton E. Burke.

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—After lunching the Los Angeles team and the Redlands young ball players some of the pilots of the great American game, Bill Carrigan's Red Sox youngsters will investigate the ability of the Vernon team at the Los Angeles park. The Vernons are quite some ball players the natives tell us, and Captain Carrigan and Manager Cooper expect a lively game.

The warm weather which has made it necessary to cancel so many games here and at San Francisco, where the regulars are quartered, has made the boys all the more anxious to get into action.

The Angelenos also want to see the Atlantic coast stars and it is understood that several will attend.

Yesterday's junket through the land of orange groves and snow capped mountain peaks to Redlands was the warmest little ray of sunshine that the Red Sox have discovered on their California map.

The Redlands people certainly did entertain the outfit in royal style From the time of the arrival when automobiles picked up the team and whisked them about the beautiful town till the train pulled out and the last farewell in the form of a crate of freshly picked oranges, the boys were given every attention. They were so much in love with the little mountain hemmed valley that efforts were made to lose the last train in order to dodge Redondo for the night.

After viewing the palm lined streets, the groves, the homes, the abandoned palace of Colonel Green, who met Tom Lawson in Boston, you remember, with an arsenal of words; the Whittier home of the Boston Burrage family and other points, the boys were taken to Smiley Heights, a park of blossoms and tropical trees, in which our public gardens would make about as much impression as a snowflake in his Satanic Majesty's Turkish bath.

Some baseball was played on the trip, too. The Redlands boys, who are good players, were defeated 7 to 3 in an eight-inning game.

The field was warm and the Sox got busy in style. Pitchers Dale and Sawyer were given tryings out. The impression is that they will have to speed up. Burke developed a reputation as the strike-out kid. He has a baffling way of mixing up curves and speed.

Prienke appears a swifter base runner than at first suspected. Nunnamacker, it appears, is some catcher and a good all round man.

One of the local fans christened Jarvis "String Bean." That ought to stick as a nickname.

Doctor Green, who umpired, won the applause of the grandstand with his old fashioned "ball tuh."

We had won lemon trees, peppers, orange trees, eucalyptus, walnuts, almonds and hundreds of others all of which had been explained very carefully by Bill Carrigan.

"Got any pumpkin pie there?" he asked.

Weather—Golden at time of writing.

RUSTLERS MARCH TO GEORGIA

By R. W. LARDNER.

Boston American Correspondent with the Rustlers on Georgian Tour.

R. W. Lardner.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Manager Fred Tenney and his Rustler squad left New York shortly after noon to-day, headed southward. Buck Miller, "Chick" Evans and the Mattern brothers, Joe and Bill, form a formidable number of athletes to Dixieen.

In the party which left the Grand Central Station this morning to breakfast at the Hotel Somerset were Manager Tenney, Trainer Neary, Players Good, Engle, Grammo, Bailey, Lahan, Burke, Young and Keefe, five newspaper men and W. D. Adams, who is the manager's brother-in-law.

Evans reached the New York rendezvous almost as soon as the party from Boston. Miller and the Matterns were at the New Pennsylvania station when the hour for departure arrived.

Manager Tenney was worried over the absence of Cecil Ferguson, whom he has been trying to locate for a week.

Fergy was ordered to report at Boston or New York, but no response came from him. The Rustler leader was impressed with the appearance of Keefe, the outfield recruit. This youth is built for speed and endurance, and if his ability accords with his physique he will make some of the others hustle to hold their jobs.

Off for South Later.

Most of the youngsters had seen New York before. This is a good thing, for the stay there lasted only six hours and the forenoon isn't the time of day when Gotham is viewed at its best, or worst.

It seemed quite natural to be going to the old Somerset once more. In fact it led some of the boys to dream that there would be a trip to the Polo Grounds and a battle with the Giants in the afternoon. Perhaps it's just as well this was only a dream, for it would be hard to muster a real ball team from the Rustler party without reinforcements from Mr. Stoneham's section, which gathers to-day in Cincinnati.

It was Trainer Neary's onerous duty to see tant trunks, grips and uniform and but bags were transferred promptly to the new Pennsylvania station, whence the team left shortly after noon for the real South.

Manager Tenney and his charges were anxious to be off for the training camp. They are tired of Victor and tired of idleness. The youngsters are crazy to get to work and the manager has given them assurance that they will have plenty of opportunity from Thursday morning on.

Everybody was sorry to hear of the illness of Wilbur Goode and hoped it would not prove serious enough to keep Wilbur away from camp long. Goode is depended on to be one of the mainstays of the outfield and Tenney doesn't want anything to interfere with his present team, in which Wilbur figures prominently.

Russell in Washington.

The players who left Boston fought shy of each other on the train, because most of them were youngsters and strangers to one another. The ice was somewhat broken and to-night will put an end to this shyness and it will be a happy family before the crowd reaches Augusta on Saturday morning.

Hefner, Frock and Parson were expected to join at Baltimore this evening at five. The latter promised to be on time minutes at Washington an hour later, and President Russell was to be added to the party there.

PLANNING TO ADOPT RECIPROCITY BY MAY

WASHINGTON, March 7.—If present plans of the Democratic Committee on Ways and Means are carried out a bill embodying the terms of the Canadian agreement, together with provisions amending the cotton and woolen schedules of the tariff law, will be passed by the House not later than May 1. Revision of the cotton schedule "downward" is proposed. Unless the Democrats are forced into it they will not attempt a general revision of the tariff in the special session. Sentiment among the Democratic committeemen favors limiting changes to the tariff law. Opinion is quite general among them [illegible] session should be made as brief as possible.

LODGE AND HALE IN CONTEST FOR OFFICE

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and former Senator Hale of Maine are engaged in a struggle for control of the naval affairs of the country. They both want the former committee room of the committee on naval affairs in the Senate and neither is inclined to yield to the wishes of the other. Senator Hale is a member of the Monetary Commission, and as such has an official standing in Washington. He therefore wants an office and he wants the old naval office because it has a private room attached. Senator Lodge wants it for the same reason and he will probably get it.

20,000 U.S. SOLDIERS TO MEXICO

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Twenty thousand United States troops, one-fourth of the standing army, have been ordered to the Department of Texas, where they will be handy to the Mexican border, and a fleet of cruisers has been ordered to the Texas coast.

When news of this action, taken under the personal direction of President Taft, became known here to-day a wild war scare resulted.

State and Navy Department officials in order to calm the alarm "explained" that the mobilization of troops had been ordered for maneuvers. Nevertheless, it was believed that information has reached the government that a crisis in the Mexican revolution is imminent that may involve this country, either through violation of the neutrality laws or attacks on American citizens.

The troops have been ordered from all sections of the country and the navy will also take part in this test of warfare. A fleet of cruisers will go to the Texas coast accompanied by the auxiliaries necessary for their maintenance. The fleet will be in command of Rear Admiral Staunton and comprises the flagship Tennessee, Montana, North Carolina and Washington, forming the fifth division of the Atlantic fleet at Hampton Roads. They are all ready for sea.

Conference With Taft.

Before the cabinet meeting to-day Secretary of War Dickinson held another conference with President Taft regarding the Mexican situation.

Later Mr. Dickinson denied that the revolution was the cause of the movement of troops to Texas and declared extensive maneuvres were to be held at San Antonio. Batteries D, E and F of the Third Artillery, stationed at Fort Meyer, Va., will proceed to San Antonio, Texas. They will be sent from that city to guard the Colorado River dam. It was announced to-day at the office of the chief of staff, Major General Leonard Wood, that 10,000 infantry and cavalry and artillery will be assembled at San Antonio for manoeuvres.

Officials of the Mexican Embassy held a secret conference with State Department officials last night, and following this meeting Major General Wood, Secretary Dickinson and Secretary Knox conferred to-day with President Taft. Following this conference the orders were issued to move the troops.

The Diaz government has appealed direct to President Taft to send sufficient troops to the Texas border to prevent any further violation of the neutrality laws and to prohibit Texans and others from flocking to the standard of the revolutionists in Chihuahua as they have been doing in large numbers since the revolution started.

Insurrectos Make Trouble.

There will be fifteen regiments of infantry, four of cavalry, two of field and two of coast artillery mobilized in the Department of Texas.

Insurrectos are interfering with the construction work on the Colorado dam. At present there are only 1,500 United States troops stationed along the Mexican border.

A frenzied appeal for troops to protect Americans doing reclamation work in the Imperial Valley of California from open robbery at the hands of Mexican brigands was to-day received at the State department.

Unexpected orders were dispatched to General Tasker H. Bliss, commanding officer of the Department of California, to send at once the full strength of the Thirtieth Infantry, and the Eighth Infantry, stationed at Monterey, to the scene of conflict. The soldiers leave for the South on special trains to-morrow afternoon, after the most hurried preparations, all of which is regarded as significant of the intent of Uncle Sam to stop the so-called revolt.

These regiments of infantry are fully equipped for real fighting. They will take with them four machine guns and a large quantity of ammunition.

Another regiment of infantry has been ordered to leave Salt Lake City for the frontier.

An El Paso dispatch says 250 Mexican federals have been killed and wounded in a battle which lasted twenty-four hours between a detachment of General Madero's insurrecto army and troops under Colonel Escudero, near Montezuma. The federals were taking part in the campaign to capture Madero.

BOYS DIE IN CHAIR AT PRISON

Shortly after the deep-toned clock in the steeple of a church in Chapman street, Charlestown, tolled forth the hour of midnight—twelve heavy strokes that floated far over the sleeping city—a pitiful tragedy of the law took place in the State Prison a block and a half away.

Two young men, with mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers—men who had been born in a foreign country and who had come to this land of wonderful opportunity to make their fortunes—were flashed into eternity at the stern behest of justice.

Remarkable Letter By Slayer.

They had taken human life and they paid the penalty of their heinous crime with their own lives.

The two were sent to death in the electric chair were the Lynn bandits—two of the three men, who in a most daring, brutal manner last June shot down Thomas Landrigan, a respected merchant of Lynn, and James H. Carroll, a patrolman.

The shooting took place in broad daylight. The two victims were on their way from a bank, Landrigan carrying a large sum of money. Taxes were taken by the bandits. In the chase that followed the attempted holdup one of the bandits was shot to death. To-day the other two were shocked to death—the one dead as a result of a mad thirst for money.

While the dark shadows of death played about the cells of the two condemned men, one of these, Andrei Ipsen—a mere boy of nineteen years—wrote a letter that gushed from his regenerated, tender heart—a letter such as Tolstoy might have written—to his mother.

This letter should not only be printed in every Russian newspaper, but it should be translated into the languages of other countries where the great hope that springs in the breast of youth is that some day they may come to America.

"This golden land is no different from our homeland," writes the boy in his native tongue. "When wrong is done, the doer is punished!"

This boy wrote to his mother that it was not true that money could be picked up in the streets here—he told her that if you wanted money you must work for it! Then he wished he was back on the little farm, even though he had ever worn shoes until he was fifteen years old.

Powerful Sermon on Sin.

What a sermon on the wages of sin! What a tragedy of boyish hope!

Ah, the little hope of poverty is not so bad after all when mother and father are there to look after wayward feet, to speak words of counsel.

Here is a circumstantial story, told plainly, of the double execution.

At 12:11:13 o'clock Ipsen appeared at the door of the death chamber. A little over a minute later the electric current had been turned on. In a moment he was dead. Wassil Ivankowski, the other bandit, entered at 12:22:28. In a few moments he, too, was dead.

Within nineteen minutes and twenty-after the current back to the barren shores three seconds from the time the first had come to the door, the fate had paid the death penalty.

Only the legal witnesses permitted by law were present. Three shocks of the current were used in each case. Ipsen was pronounced dead by the attending physicians at 12:19:45, just six minutes and forty seconds after the electricity had first been turned on. Ivankowski was pronounced officially dead at 12:30:36, nineteen and fifty-one seconds after he received the first charge.

Ivankowski Dies With Sneer.

The fact that the triple shock was used made the electrocutions somewhat unusual in the State Prison. Usually not more than two separate shocks are used. The doctors agreed that to all outward appearances both men were dead after they suffered the first charge.

There was another feature to the double execution early to-day which set it without parallel. This was the attitude with which the bandits met the end. Both were vocal and collected. But the calmness of Ipsen and his pal, Ivankowski, was a study in contrast. The reason lay in the character of the two. It was this wide difference in character that made the State's first double electrocution a most remarkable incident in the history of the electric chair.

Ipsen met his doom with a smile. He nodded a farewell to the priest of God who had befriended him. He kissed the crucifix. Then he said good-bye to the priest, and he died. But with Ivankowski, it was just the opposite. He smiled, but his smile was unlike Ipsen's. He sneered. He laughed, as he took his seat in the chair. Then he blasphemed. He cursed God and the absent priest whom he had forbidden to remain at his side. There was no kissing of crucifix for him. He died with a sneer on his face.

The execution was a tragedy of a smile and a sneer. Ipsen sought the consolation of religion. He was anointed, and he died at peace with his soul. So he Catholic prison chaplain.

"He die content," he whispered in his broken English.

And his smile as he said it expressed hope.

It was otherwise with Ivankowski. He

LOMASNEY HAS A WORD-FIGHT

Opponents to the Lomasney-Fitzgerald bills providing for taking the power to confirm the Mayor's appointees away from the Civil Service Commission were heard at the State House to-day before the legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs.

The hearing opened with a lively fight between Representative Martin M. Lomasney and Robert Homans, an attorney. Homans appeared for the Boston Charter Association in opposition to the proposed charter changes. The Mayor of Boston, he said, needed some restraining influence like the Civil Service Commission.

"Would you have the Governor's appointees approved by the Civil Service Commission instead of by his council?" asked Lomasney.

"Certainly," said Homans, "if conditions in State appointments were as bad as they are in city appointments."

"Wasn't the Finance Commission a direct result body? Didn't they let the city thieves get by?" asked Lomasney.

"What big thieves?" prodded Homans.

"The steel thieves, for instance," who got away after a farce trial."

"The jury brought in its verdict," said Homans.

"I know that, but the trial was a farce just the same," said Lomasney.

After more word volleys, the hearing went on.

Homans was one of the counsel for the defence in the trial of the steel cases.

BOSTON LUNATIC TERRORIZES TOWN

NEWBURYPORT, March 7.—This town is in terror, and Chief of Police John H. McLean has detailed a special squad of twelve policemen to the railroad station and other points throughout the city since he received word that Henry O. Martin escaped from the Danvers Insane Asylum. Martin, who formerly was an instructor in the Park square skating rink in Boston, has threatened to kill his relatives, many of whom live here.

ALDRICH EXPECTED AT CAPITAL TO-DAY

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Former Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island is expected in Washington to-day to meet several of his former colleagues at the capital. His visit there is described as bearing chiefly upon the work of the National Monetary Commission, of which he is still chairman. The commission plans quite extensive Spring operations in the way of educating the public to the need of banking and currency reform.

BALLINGER QUITS; SAYS HE'LL BE BAD

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Richard A. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior, resigned to-day. W. L. Fisher of Chicago succeeds him. The announcement of Mr. Ballinger's resignation was made at the White House, the President at the same time stating that he had selected Mr. Fisher to succeed him.

RESIGNATION HELD UP TILL CONGRESS ADJOURNED.

The resignation was tendered on January 19, but President Taft requested him to withhold it until after Congress adjourned. The secretary consented to do so and wrote another formal letter of resignation yesterday. This was presented to the President to-day and accepted.

Mr. Fisher, the new secretary, is a well known lawyer of the West and became famous in Chicago through his advocacy of municipal reform.

Ballinger asserts he was compelled to resign because of his health, on January 19 he wrote to the President as follows:

Mr. Ballinger's Letter.

"I have thought over this talk we had last Saturday. I am exceedingly gratified for your kind expressions of appreciation for my work, and they certainly compensate me in the largest measure for what I have suffered.

"Your attitude throughout has been a great source of comfort to me, and yet I feel that the condition of my health is such that I must ask to be relieved from office. I prostrate again under my responsibilities and ask you to accept it.

"I should be untrue to all of my impulses if I did not seize the occasion to say that I have at all times striven to meet the obligations imposed upon me, to serve you, the administration and the country to the best of my ability.

"I am deeply sensible of the unfailing confidence which you have reposed in me under circumstances which have necessarily been trying to you, and the support and respect which you have never ceased to accord me I shall always remember.

"I am anxious to retire as soon as I can properly do so, yet am unwilling to embarrass you, and therefore respectfully ask you to indicate, in regard to the matter, when it will best suit your convenience.

The President's Reply.

Replying, President Taft, under date of January 23 said:

"For reasons which have deeply impressed themselves in my heart and mind, I would never consent to consider your resignation on any ground that was based on the good of the service or on adopting me personally or politically; for no such ground is tenable by me, only on the score of your health and personal convenience and to prevent further pecuniary sacrifices on your part, will I consider the possibility of accepting your resignation. But not even on the latter ground can I consider it until after Congress adjourns, until after all urgent attacks are made and until after I have had the benefit of your valuable and necessary aid during the remainder of a crowded session, and until we have reached the point at which I feel I can follow the personal party and personal incident to the close of a short session.

Circulation and Advertising Supremacy in New England

During the month of February just past the AMERICAN led every paper in Boston in circulation, both daily and Sunday, by many thousands.

The average circulation of the Evening AMERICAN for February was 379,151

The average circulation of the Sunday AMERICAN for February was 351,813

The circulation gain of the AMERICAN for the month was more than double the gain of all the other Boston newspapers combined.

The advertising gain of the AMERICAN for the month was more than double the advertising gain of all the other Boston newspapers combined.

The AMERICAN is the only Boston daily newspaper whose circulation is on a non-returnable basis. The advertising rate of the AMERICAN is the lowest per inch per thousand of circulation of any newspaper in Boston or New England, and its lowness of rate is only equalled by two Other newspapers in the entire United States.

The circulation of the Evening AMERICAN is equalled by only one other evening newspaper in the country and exceeds by over 300,000 the circulation of the next highest evening paper in Boston and by more than 100,000 the circulation of all of the other Boston evening papers combined. The circulation of the Sunday AMERICAN is equalled by only three other Sunday newspapers in the country, two in New York and one in Chicago.

BROKER CALLS BIG NOTE BOGUS

A fake note for $100,000, which it was testified Charles H. Rollins gave to Harry E. Curtis for the latter's interest in the Sederquist, Barry brokerage firm, was introduced in evidence to-day when the trial of the four men who were connected with the firm was resumed before Judge Jenney and a jury. The defendants are charged with larceny and conspiracy and the sum involved totals nearly $1,000,000.

Beadon Curtis, D. Eustace Bigelow, Arthur B. Sederquist and John E. Barry are on trial. Mr. Rollins resumed the witness stand when court opened. He resides at No. 187 Commonwealth avenue. He was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Weber.

A written agreement was produced, dated January 18, 1909, in which Curtis purported to sell his rights in the firm for $100,000 to Rollins.

Says Note Was Not Paid.

"What did you give for that bill of sale?" Mr. Webber asked Mr. Rollins. "A note for $100,000."

Q.—Describe the note. A.—It was just like any other note, I suppose.

Q.—Have you any record of that note? A.—No.

Q.—Did you give any security with the note? A.—No.

Q.—Do you remember the date for payment of the note? A.—No.

Q.—Did you pay the note? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever see it? A.—Yes.

Q.—When? A.—Yes, Curtis showed it to me about the middle of February, 1909.

Q.—Were you ever asked to pay the note? A.—No.

Q.—Is that property which you have at the time you gave the note? A.—I can't tell.

Q.—Please try and tell us? A.—I can't give any answer to that question.

Q.—Do you own any real estate? A.—No.

Q.—Own any personal estate? A.—None to speak of.

Q.—Did you own any other kind of property? A.—No.

Q.—Who asked you to sign this paper? A.—I had a general talk with Curtis and with the two Mr. Freemans. It was Joseph Freeman who brought the paper to the office. He is a lawyer.

Says Salary Was Raised.

Q.—Mr. Rollins, have you told all you remember about this transaction? A.—It was a mere matter of form. Mr. Curtis didn't expect me to pay the money.

Q.—Did he say so? A.—Yes, I think he did. He said he was just going to retire from the name of the firm.

Mr. Webber in his opening speech to the jury yesterday said that Curtis did not retire from the firm in reality, but only in name, and that he went to New York so that he could join another exchange, which would enable the firm to defraud the people with greater dexterity.

Q.—What did you get in return for your note? A.—Nothing.

Q.—Wasn't your salary increased about that time? A.—Yes, from $250 to $300 a month.

Q.—Did you get any other sums of money? A.—Only expenses on trips, which didn't amount to more than $300.

3,000 WOMEN AT MISSION SERVICES

Despite the disagreeable weather the Cathedral was crowded by women, the occasion being the second mission conducted by members of the Passionist order. There were probably 3,000 women present when the Rev. Fr. Walter, C. S. P., gave the penitentiary instruction on "How to Make a Good Confession." The sermon of the evening was on "Mortal Sin; Its Hideousness and Punishment," which was delivered by the Rev. Fr. Aleaks, C. S. P. Each evening this week, Father Saltmyre, the service for women will be continued.

SAYS GIRL IS HARBOR SUICIDE

As a result of the story told to the police of Station 2, the City Hall avenue station, by Thomas J. Holmes, a young artilleryman stationed at Fort Banks, that a young girl named Frances Bell of Winthrop had jumped over the railing of the southern avenue bridge late last night, following a love quarrel, and was drowned, the Harbor Police to-day searched for the body, but without result.

Holmes was held by the police. It is said that he was intoxicated when arrested. He was later released. They were unable to get much information from him at the time. He gave the police the girl's name, but was unable to assist them any further.

The first information came to the police station at eleven o'clock yesterday forenoon, and Hall on Atlantic avenue, and told them a soldier at the Revere Beach station on the "Narrow Gauge" had mentioned the affair to him. Holmes was then taken in by the police.

He explained that he and a quarrel with the girl and said that she sprang to the rail and jumped overboard. He said that he heard no splash.

Holmes enlisted about three years ago. He was assigned to the Seventh company, Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Banks. At the fort it is said that Holmes knew many people in Boston, and that he had a wide acquaintance among women, who were in the habit of calling him on the phone every day. When Holmes was absent from the fort the women who called for him would leave long-distance numbers, with a message to have Holmes call them.

They said that he had more calls than other men. He is not much over twenty-one years old. Shortly after his enlistment, it is said, he was charged with drunkenness while on duty and was put in the guardhouse for a month.

WANT MY VOTE? THEN GET A PHONE!

SPENCER, March 7.—One of the questions which a candidate for office of town constable or policeman may have to answer hereafter is this: "Have you a telephone in your house?" If not, the candidate may not be able to qualify for office. Citizens are demanding that the police and constabulary put in 'phones so that they can be reached late at night in case of fire, burglars or other crime or disaster. There are thirteen constables in the town and a dozen sheriffs. Nine can be reached at night only by going to their houses. Henry E. Dunham of Church street says: "You cannot expect a man to get up and run all over town for a policeman at night, especially if there is a burglar in his house."

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS Up to Midnight London Time

$1,000,000 Fraud Charged to an American Lawyer.

DUBLIN—An inquiry is in progress here regarding the sanity of Edward Corcoran, who was left an estate valued at $1,250,000 by a relative, John Sullivan of Seattle, Wash. Mr. Corcoran's counsel, Timothy M. Healy, alleges that Mr. Corcoran has been grossly swindled by lawyers and has received only $6,000. Mr. Corcoran was found living in a squalid Dublin lodging house. Mr. Corcoran's son sought to have his father declared insane. Mr. Healy said that if the elder Corcoran had his rights he would be worth $1,250,000. Mr. Healy said that Mr. Corcoran's cousin died in Seattle in 1900 intestate. An American lawyer came to Dublin, and, continued the counsel, "seeing he had no easy mark, grossly misrepresented the value of the inheritance."

England Sees Mormon Peril.

LONDON—The charges that hundreds of young English girls are being sent to the Mormon colonies in Utah and other parts of the United States by agents of that church in various cities of this country were brought up in the shape of questions in the House of Commons. Numerous anti-Mormon meetings have been held throughout the country of late, and relatives of girls and women who have succumbed to Utah have been flooding Home Secretary Churchill with petitions asking for an investigation.

Miss Grace Makes London Debut.

LONDON—Mrs. M. P. Grace was the hostess at a notable dance at No. 4, Hertford square last night, at which her youngest and only unmarried daughter, Miss Anglo-American society. Representatives of the diplomatic world were there in force. Mrs. Grace, in a gold brocade gown, veiled with chiffon of a deep shade of blue, and wearing a tiara and a necklace of diamonds, received her guests at the head of the staircase. Miss Grace wore a dress of pale blue satin with an overdress of pink chiffon.

Mascagni Wins His Suit.

MILAN—The decision of the Civil Tribunal which heard the case of Mascagni, the composer, and Sonzogna, the publisher of "Ysobel," against Liebler & Co. of New York, was announced to-day and generally favors the plaintiff. Liebler & Co. are convicted of contempt of court and judged to be at fault in the breaking of a contract with Mascagni. The New Yorkers are condemned to pay damages in the sum of $5,000 to Sonzogna and the costs of the trial. Mascagni is given $15,000.

Japs Again Alarm China.

PEKIN—Under the pretext that China's prohibition against Chinese coolies from the infected districts in Shantung province rescuing Manchuria will entail enormous losses upon the South Manchurian Railway and other Japanese enterprises, the Japanese quarantine office at Manchuria has urged the Tokio government to take over control of the entire quarantine work in that portion of China's territory. This action of the Japanese assumes a sinister aspect in the eyes of the Chinese.

New Moroccan Revolt.

LONDON—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph, dated Tangier, Monday, says nearly all the tribes between Alcazar Kebir and Fez have revolted against the Sultan. Communication with Fez is cut off. French officers and court officials who had left Alcazar Kebir for Fez have been compelled to take refuge at Larache. The Sultan's rebellion have been defeated and dispersed, retreating toward Fez.

Society Watches London Suit.

LONDON—The case of Baron De Forest against Lady Gerard came up for trial in the High Court to-day. An interest is much keener in this case than in that which Mrs. Asquith testified that extravagance be a passport to society. It is expected that the socially elect will fight for admission to the court.

TOWN AND STATE

VALUELESS AFTER MARCH 21, 1911.

TIP TO CONTESTANTS

The Sally II., twenty-foot motor boat built by Rice Bros. of East Boothbay, and offered as one of the prizes in District Four (Maine) in AMERICAN'S $35,000 Prize Contest.

By the CONTEST EDITOR.

Question—Is every candidate going to get the benefit of the March vote bonus offer, whether he wins the March automobile runabout prize or not?

Answer—Yes.

The Contest Editor thought he had explained that special March offer from every possible angle. But a candidate has written to ask us as follows:

"Suppose I send in several lots of ten subscriptions each in competition for the March automobile runabout. Do I get the special vote bonus of 5,000 votes extra for every lot of ten subscriptions sent in during March, whether I win the automobile or not?

Of course the vote bonus of 5,000 extra votes for each and every lot of ten subscriptions is credited to the candidate, irrespective of who wins the automobile.

Here's an Illustration.

Take a specific case: Suppose every candidate sends in a certain number of subscriptions during March. For each and every lot of ten subscriptions each candidate sends, that candidate receives a special vote bonus of 5,000 extra votes. The one candidate polling the most votes by SUBSCRIPTION during March gets the runabout. But the candidate who wins the runabout and all the other candidates who get a special vote bonus for subscriptions in lots of ten during March retain that March bonus to boost their standing in the main contest just the same.

Is that clear? Whether you win the runabout or whether you do not, you get your vote bonus for every lot of ten subscriptions, just as though no special automobile prize were offered at all for March. The automobile prize is given as extra incentive to all candidates to hustle for subscriptions in March. That's what makes the double March offer so advantageous.

There has not been such special inducement for contestants to get votes by subscription since the contest started. They are enabled to pile up their voting strength at a faster rate than ever and are offered a special prize for doing so.

The automobile runabout is the special prize. The vote bonus is the method which enables them to pile up votes with greater ease than ever.

A State-of-Maine candidate writes for a description of the Rice motor boat, which is one of the prizes in District Four (Maine). This District Four boat is the "Sally II.," a twenty-foot power boat built by the Rice Brothers at East Boothbay, Me. The "Sally II." is a power craft of which anyone would be proud. It is finished in mahogany, with brass trimmings and every sort of equipment required by government regulations. This boat will combine class, speed and comfort.

Rice Brothers, who are placing this type of power craft on the market this season, are known to rank among the best boat builders of the country. Their exhibit at the recent mo or boat show in Boston included one of these "Sally II" designs. It attracted widespread attention for its up-to-date appearance.

The "Sally II." will be fitted with a Gray engine, which will easily drive it at eight miles an hour.

So much for our State-of-Maine friend.

Of course every candidate will right on deck for the Sunday AMERICAN of next Sunday, March 12, with its first list of candidates' standing by districts.

Women and Mrs. Melber in Death Trial

Mr. Melber and son, for whose death by poisoning she is now on trial at Albany, N. Y.

ACCUSED SLAYER OF FIVE-YEAR-OLD SON SAYS TRAGEDY IS A BLANK TO HER.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 7.—With little heed filling the jury box to-day the trial of Mrs. Edith Melber, charged with murdering her five-year-old child, George, by feeding carbolic acid down his throat while he was crying for a drink of water, and attempting his body in a bog, was resumed in Criminal Court before Judge Howard to-day.

More the court house doors were opened a large crowd assembled, many of whom were women. Mrs. Melber seemed bright-eyed today by the aid which has been furnished by Mrs. Wetton Stanford, Jr., of Schenectady, "the little deaconess," and other wealthy women who have been moved by sympathy for the forlorn defendant.

Mrs. Stanford, who is the wife of a grandnephew of the late United States Senator Leland Stanford of California, and who became known as "the little deaconess" for her activity at Methodist revivals, is much interested in the progress of the trial.

Memory of Tragedy Fails.

In a talk with a reporter, Mrs. Melber discussed the murder for the first time since her arrest and indictment. She maintained that she has no recollection of what transpired upon the fatal day. Mrs. Melber said that she had read a great deal while in jail, the Bible being her favorite book. This, she declared, had been given her by Mrs. Stanford.

"Mrs. Melber said that she had no plans for the future, and that during her ride to the courtroom from the jail that she had not noticed anything, and that she could not find her way back if she tried.

The question was asked if the snow brought recollections of her little son Georgie.

"No, I never thought about him."

"Did you ever dream about him?" she was asked.

"No; I ate and slept well and had no dreams."

"Do you recollect leading him into a swamp the day he was poisoned?"

"No, I don't remember anything about it at all."

BLONDES LOSING CUPID'S RACE

The blondes should take to hair dye, instead of brunettes seeking the peroxide bottle.

This is the conclusion reached by a New York woman writer, who has been making an investigation of her own since a university professor asserted that brunette beauty is the type most attractive to men. Her opinion is based on a two-hours' stay in the marriage license bureau in the New York City Hall.

Of the seventy-nine beaming young women who during the two hours exhibited the one irrefragable proof of feminine beauty and charm—the masculine victim—fifty-four, or nearly two-thirds, were decided brunettes.

And of the twenty-five others only eight were straight-out blondes, with the light hair, eyes and complexion demanded by Noah Webster's definition. So there you are!

Brunettes Take Lead.

In fact, no less than thirty-four cheerful couples had turned away from the official grating, duly licensed to commit matrimony, before the arrival of the first gold haired maid. There was ever so much more variety in the hats than in the heads under them.

The first young woman to receive a license was a pronounced and pretty brunette, with big dark-brown eyes, hair of soft black shadow, and a clear olive skin.

Nos. two, three, four and five of the about-to-be-weds chanced to belong to a type perhaps commoner in the "melting pot" of America than anywhere else in the world, that of the girl who is neither light nor dark, but an in-between. She has brown—not black—hair, a fresh complexion, with rather more color than the pure blonde naturally possesses, and blue eyes.

Almost an unvarying succession of brunettes followed, tall and short, plump and thin, pretty and not so pretty, but every one dark as to hair and eyes, olive as to complexion.

One charming young person there was with tawny, red-brown hair and gold-brown eyes. But No. thirty-five was the First Blonde—her soft, flaxen locks straying from underneath an effective black hat, her eyes blue as cornflowers.

Blonde Puffs Didn't Match.

It took ten more of the other sort to produce Blond Lady No. Two, and even her front and rear golden puffs failed to match.

There were only six more blondes out of the total of seventy-nine. There were, in all, twelve girls with brown hair and blue eyes. There were two with reddish hair and blue eyes, in addition to one pretty girl with brown eyes and auburn locks. And there were two with yellow hair and brown eyes. All the rest were unmistakable brunettes.

"We certainly have more brunettes than blondes come in here," said the chief clerk. "I should say at least twice as many, speaking off-hand.

"Has the man find the dark ones more attractive? It looks so from the results, doesn't it? There is apt to be a certain dash and sparkle about a brunette, though, for that matter, there's something very sweet and appealing in blue eyes. Perhaps fewer blondes come here because they are scarcer, and as most men just love to take the opposite type. Really now, I—I like both kinds myself."

BANDITS GO TO DEATH IN CHAIR AT STATE PRISON WITHOUT FEAR

IPSEN SMILES AND IVANKOWSKI SNEERS AS DEATH CURRENT IS S HOT THROUGH THEM.

died as he had lived—an atheist and a revolutionist, with scorn in his heart. His last words were to begin an oath which death left unfinished.

The students of the two men widely different as it was stamped them as the two most wonderful men to die for murder within the experience of the State Prison officials. Both walked straight to the chair a distance of a few feet from the cells in which they had been guarded by the death watch for the past two weeks. Neither set his nerve as any instant.

Save for his sunken cheeks, it was Ivankowski of a year ago, who had just landed in America—who met Death, devoid of youth, whom he had known as a boy in their native town in Russia. Ivankowski's own life influenced him. Ipsen always maintained he was corrupted by his friend. Those who came to know the two after the Lynn murder were doubtful the fact. Both men were supremely indifferent to their fate. Each in his own way felt almost unconcerned. Indeed, Ipsen was defiant. The step of each was firm. There wasn't a quiver except that which came to the face after death. Their collected manner marked both as wonders among criminals.

Ipsen Writes to Mother.

Neither made any last request. Of consolation there was none for Ivankowski. He had killed in cold blood. He knew that he did not balk the fate that he expected out to him by justice. With Ipsen it was not so. His confession, in full, is one—and there is little doubt that he sided it was sealed before ten minutes had ago. spiritual adviser, Father Malley. He, too, said that shooting his enemies in the trenches of two defenseless men.

Ipsen's last act was to write a letter home to his mother and sisters in Russia. Ivankowski also had father, mother, brothers and sisters, but he refused to write to a letter. Until last Thursday he had been completely deserted, and it was only by the teachings of the priest he at last was induced to write to his own flesh. Ivan's misintrations to Ipsen, who was in the cell next to his own, could be heard became in the man. For six days, up till his death, Ivankowski was little else than curses and blasphemous religion.

That his friend was growing never under the solace offered by religion seemed to have no effect whatever on Ivankowski. Almost constantly Ipsen prayed or spent his time in reading a little prayer book he brought from Russia, which he said his mother gave him when he was child. This book he left with over to Father Malley to keep in memory of him. This was just before the stroke of midnight last night. Father Malley

Save Your Hair

People of refinement realize more every day that the hair needs daily care and attention just as well as the teeth. Don't neglect your hair. Use WOODBURY'S HAIR TONIC every day. It keeps the scalp healthy, protects the hair and makes it grow long, beautiful and abundant.

WOODBURY'S HAIR TONIC saves the hair when all other preparations fail. It gets right down to the hair roots and gives new life to the hair it feeds. It acts QUICK. Results are shown by the first application. A trial will prove it.

had been with him almost constantly through the day. For six hours before Ipsen was led forth to the death chair, Father Malley had not once left the cell.

Ivankowski Always Sneered.

Father Malley referred to Ipsen as "my good boy." His reformation has been complete while under the influence of the priest.

"If think at heart he was always a good boy," said the gentle priest to-day. "He was led away by bad companions. He met his end with a clear conscience. Ivankowski was thoroughly bad. He would do nothing with him. Since Thursday he had done all in his power to make the good I had worked for Ipsen's salvation."

The guards who saw Ivankowski constantly said he lived a sneer. He laughed all the time. It was a derisive laugh—one of mirth but bitter, scorn and contempt. He sneered when he was placed under arrest; when the surgeons in Lynn dressed him for a bullet wound in the hand; when the crowd cried for vengeance in court during his trial at Salem, and when the jury brought in the verdict of guilty. He finished his life as he had lived it, with a sneer and an oath.

A few minutes after 12 this morning, the guards came to Ivankowski's cell, tearing the black shirt and trousers he was to wear to the chair. Ivankowski was smoking a cigarette. As he donned the clothing it never left his mouth. Once his foot went through the slit cut in the left trousers leg through which the electrode is applied. The smoker then put on both that almost sent his cigarette to the cement floor of his cell.

There were other instances which were recalled as showing the bravado of the man. He was but twenty-two years old. The sentence of death was pronounced upon him. Ipsen said of him that he didn't believe in fear. "I never had shown any love or other emotion."

Many men had been given flowers contributed by some one outside. Ivankowski trampled his under his feet. Ipsen placed his on his cot.

Ipsen was provided to the death chamber by Father Malley. He carried them in his cassock, held aloft his crucifix in his left hand and his right hand on the electric chair. Just before the straps were fastened about his wrists, clasping the little prayer book.

Both prayed continually. On either side of Ipsen were two guards. Behind him followed in single file, and Ipsen in his native tongue. His eyes closed as he entered where the legal witnesses stood. On his left, at a slight angle, was Dr. Dewitt, deputy master of the House of Correction, who read the warrant of execution over the prisoners while they were strapped in the chair. Ipsen's face lit up with a smile, and he nodded his head, in motion that was evidently intended as both a greeting and a farewell. In a few moments he had been strapped in the chair. He recited the Lord's prayer after Father Malley.

Last Words to Priest.

His last words were to Father Malley —"Proschi, Batushka." This was translated to mean, "Good-by, Father."

Ipsen's bearing when he faced death intensified the stillness in the chamber. Tears came to the eyes of some of the witnesses. There was almost a complete cessation of feeling five minutes later when Ivankowski was brought in. He was sneering. There was neither hesitancy nor pathos in his passing. He was as cold-blooded in the end as in the act committing the Lynn murders.

The double execution was one of the quietest in the history of the Charlestown institution. Outside the fence which surrounds the prison there were not half a dozen persons, a striking contrast to the usual throngs of morbid curiosity seekers who gather during "death" week. Inside the prison there was the usual quiet that hi prevails when prisoners are about to be electrocuted.

The high voltage used—1,000 volts—was due to the large physique of the two Russians. Both were in the best of health. Outside of the wounds each received from bullets fired by Lynn policemen in the bandit hunt last Summer, neither could be seen a sick day. In jail they never required the attendance of a physician.

Three Shocks for Ipsen.

For Ipsen the amperage was from 775 to 8. For Ivankowski the amperage ranged from 9 to 1,015.

The first current turned on for Ipsen, the first man to die, was 775 volts, which was left on for eight seconds. Then the electrician, who was concealed behind a screen, dropped this to 250 volts through twenty-two seconds. Then the current flowed back to 500 volts for 60 seconds. Another drop of 250 lasted twenty-four seconds. The maximum was resumed for eight seconds. After a brief period, the same process was gone through. another interval, and the shock was given in the same method for the third time.

The period of maximum voltage for Ivankowski was higher, because of his greater stature and heavier weight. He overweighed Ipsen by thirty-five pounds, and was a good deal taller. The 1,000 volts were given for six seconds, with a drop to 250 for twenty-four seconds; again the 1,000 for eight seconds, another drop to 250 for twenty-two seconds, and a final increase to the maximum for the unusual period of eleven seconds. This was repeated twice.

A new departure marks the disposition of the bodies to-day. Heretofore, in the post-mortem examinations have been held on bodies of men who died in the electric chair. Post-mortem examinations are held to-day on the bodies of Ipsen and Ivankowski, following an order issued by Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior Court. Dr. George H. Magrath, medical examiner of Suffolk county, conducted the examinations in the North Grove street morgue.

The post-mortems were permitted under the Massachusetts statute. In the present instance, it is the desire of the authorities to learn something about the bullet which Ipsen has carried in his brain since he was shot in Lynn. An autopsy will reveal just what course the bullet followed, and why it happened the man could live so long with the lead still inside his skull. Repeated probings at Lynn City Hospital for the bullet were unsuccessful.

The legal witnesses to the execution this morning were: Warden "Benjamin F. Bridges, Jr., Joseph I. McLaughlin, Carthrison physician; Dr. George Burrows Magrath, medical examiner of Suffolk County; Dr. Charles C. Porter, surgeon general of Massachusetts; Dr. J. F. O'Shea of Lynn, the physician who rescued the bandits after they were wounded in Lynn; Dr. Joseph R. Lyons, of Charlestown; Augustus D. Bennett, deputy master of the Essex County House of Correction; Father Malley, the Catholic prison chaplain, and Jay R. Benton, who was the press representative.

The death warrants were signed by Dr. Magrath, McLaughlin and Porter.

Warden Gets Condemned.

The witnesses came early. Headed by Warden Bridges, they left the office of the warden at 12:05 o'clock. They walked two and two, over the tunnel walk which was covered with a light fall of snow. A hundred yards east brought them to the prison door, leading into the north cell-house. Here the warden rapped three times with his black cane. The door opened softly, but inside the sounds jangled in the usual hurly-burly. Some one called out with distinctness by the prisoners in the death cells.

"Who comes?"

Warden Bridges replied:

"The warden."

The guard unchained the outer shirk door. The witnesses filed in. The doors were then relocked and refastened. The last solid lock imprisoned the silent witnesses in the death house.

With marching double file, the witnesses with the guard and the warden in the lead, walked slowly down the central corridor a distance of forty feet to the door at the right end. This the guard unlocked. A brilliant flood of light gushed forth, in bright contrast with the dimness of the hallway.

The witnesses now faced the death chamber. This was a pitch of about twenty-five feet, and measured forty by seventy feet. Into this they walked. The glare of the incandescent bulbs was so great that some blinked their eyelids.

To the immediate left of the entrance stood the chair. Across the arms of this lay the "dead" board. This was made of a great number of lights, ranged in rows along and across the board. At the extreme right of the chair was the screen behind which the electrician stood. At his back was a large switchboard. Between his stand and the chair was the door leading to the three death cells, in smaller larger chamber.

Witnesses Stand.

In front of the chair was the row of chairs for the witnesses. These, however, are seldom used, and were not used this morning, the witnesses preferring to remain standing.

Directly back of the row of seats is a long screen which veils an ante-chamber, along which the dead bodies lie. On these are placed the bodies of those who are put to death.

Next to completed the cell nearest the door to the death chamber. Ivankowski occupied the middle cell. The third was left vacant and his been so since the three Chinamen were executed a year and a half ago.

Inside the cell chamber stood a row of guards. Two of these drew a curtain across the room, so as to shut off from Ivankowski the view of the space in front of his pal's cell. This is done so that the condemned man may not see his friend, the first being led away.

The lights in the cell row was opened. Four guards grasped the nineteen-year-old murderer, one on a side. To one side stood Father Malley, looking on, his two months' task was here with solemn sorrow. Another guard stationed at the entrance door, held it open. Through it passed first the warden, then the priest, then Ipsen with his guards. The appearance of Ipsen gave some of the witnesses their first sight of the man. Instinctively, all hearts quailed. He entered the immediate hushing of everything save the throbbing of motors.

Outstrips the Guards.

Ipsen walked briskly forth. He was almost buoyant. It was ten steps for him to reach the chair. He outstripped the guards, pulling them along behind. Warden Bridges took his stand in front of the chair, while Father Malley stepped still in prayer, a little further along, so that when the prisoner faced him, he was at Ipsen's right.

Ipsen did not looked once about the room. He smiled to Deputy Bennett. After that he kept his eyes on Father Malley. To the priest he gave his crucifix and his prayer book, saying he wanted Father Malley to keep them for his sake.

Ipsen died more easily than did Ivankowski. There was scarcely a quiver of his muscles. His face twitched when the first shock was received, but it did not remove the smile from his features. Even when he was laid on the stretcher, he carried a trace of that same composed illumining of the countenance.

Swears on Way to Chair.

When Ivankowski was led forth his appearance was one of bold bravado. He sneered as he looked around the chamber. He swore repeatedly, sometimes in Russian and again in English. He continued his sneering and talking while he was being strapped to the chair. He regarded the proceedings as a huge joke," as one of the witnesses said in describing the bearing assumed by the prisoner.

Ivankowski was still swearing when the first shock was received. He swore when the helmet was bound over his skull. He cursed when the warden and when the other witnesses.

PRIEST REFUSED BY IVANKOWSKI AT DEATH CHAIR

"Ipsen died a good boy, and with a clean conscience," declared Father Malley. "I was thoroughly bad. He died that way."

The Rev. Augustine D. Malley, Catholic chaplin at the State Prison, who ministered to the spiritual wants of Andrei Ipsen and accompanied him to the death chair, made this statement to-day, after the witnesses filed from the death house, but to death.

"Ivankowski was a Nihilist and a revolutionist, and he seemed bound by some

Ipsen's Letter to Mother Tells of Hope in Death

One of the most remarkable documents ever turned out at the Charlestown State Prison is the farewell letter to his mother written by Andrei Ipsen, one of the Lynn bandits, only a few minutes before his execution. While his comrade in crime shouted and sang Ipsen wrote a letter which for simplicity and pathos is hardly rivalled even in fiction. The letter, translated from the Russian, follows:

Boston, Mass., March 6, 1911.

America.

To My Holy Mother:

When you get this letter I shall be no longer on earth. Little did I think when I left you and my beloved sisters, a little over three years ago, that I would never return. When I went away to make my fortune, it was my intention to remember all that you had taught me.

But I got into bad company. I did wrong and had to pay the penalty. This wonderful America; this "golden land;" is no different from our homeland. When wrong is done, the wrongdoer is punished. I did a wrong and the law demands that I be dealt with.

Not only I, but another one of our countrymen is in trouble. He is to share my punishment with me. This country of many promises is not quite so wonderful as we are led to believe. It is not true that money can be picked up in the streets. If you want money here, you must work for it; harder than you work at home. You need more. It costs more to live.

I wish I had never left you and my home. It is true that I never wore a pair of shoes until I was fifteen years old. It is true that I had no fine clothes to wear, yet I was much happier.

I got the shoes and clothes in America. I got food at times, but it had not the same taste as at home; it meant hard work, and I must also speak the truth and that many times I did not have anything to eat. I wished myself back on the little farm; back home in the country of the "Little Father." There I had no fear of hunger. There I did nothing wrong. It was that hunger that brought me to this trouble.

If I only had my life to live over I would have a different ending. I cannot write much more. My eyes are filled with tears and my hand falters, yet I must finish this letter to you, as it is the last I will ever write. The good priest, who has been with me daily for nearly two weeks has given me hope for the future. He has helped me to keep up my spirits and to see right from wrong. He is good. He prayed for me.

There is little good in regrets. It will not make matters easy. So with a prayer for your health and future happiness; with my blessing and love to you and my sisters, and a wish that you will offer a prayer at the shrine, for the repose of my soul, I end my last letter to you. I love you all. I wish that I could hold you all in my arms once more. Your loving son and brother, forever. Goodbye.

(Signed) ANDREI.

BREAKS THE MOST STUBBORN COLD AND ENDS GRIPPE IN A FEW HOURS.

The most severe cold will be broken and all grippe misery ended after taking a dose of Pape's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

You will distinctly feel all the disagreeable symptoms leaving after the very first dose.

The most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, running of the nose, sore throat, muscous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness, rheumatism pains and other distress vanish.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

Health and Beauty Answers

BY MRS. MAE MARTIN.

B. C. V.: Remember this: "A beautiful face never looks incorrect." It is to your credit that you wish to remain young looking as long as possible. Although marks of age—enlarged pores, rough skin and premature wrinkles—have begun to show in your once beautiful face, you can easily get rid of them and regain your charming complexion by using this greaseless cream: Get an ounce of almond oil from any drug store; put it in a half pint cold water; adding a teaspoonful of glycerine; stir and let stand a few hours. Apply this cream lightly and you will find it will remove all dirt and grease from the pores, make the large pores smaller and leave your skin soft, smooth and fresh looking. I find this excellent for preventing smoothness, blackheads, red pimples, freckles and chapping. When used as a morning cream it is fine for filling out hollow cheeks and removing wrinkles.

Mrs. T. C.: No one can afford to neglect his or her eyes, although most people do. If you want bright, clear, beautiful eyes that will be much admired, you can have them with very little care. Get an ounce of cystos at any drug store and dissolve it in a pint of water. Put two or three drops of this tonic in each eye daily and you will be surprised how it will strengthen your weak, tired eyes and make them strong, clear and sparkling. Many oculists who use this simple tonic in secret now confess that they have cured countless people. It is very soothing and has enabled many to discard their wearing glasses.

Elsa: Nature did not intend women should have hairy growths on the face, and even though many do not mind it, as you say, it can be easily and quickly removed without pain, trouble or much expense of the electric needle. I would suggest you get a 25-cent box of delatone and mixing a little with water to form a stiff paste. Spread thickly on hairy surface and let remain two or three minutes, then rub off or wash off with cold water. The hairs are gone. Druggists charge a dollar an ounce for delatone, but it is very cheap to use as the first application usually suffices.

Anita: To restore the youthful tint and true blonde shade of your hair, you should wash it with marlax tea, made by steeping an ounce of marlax in a pint of water. Before using, cleanse the hair well with castile and dry well, then wash in the marlax tea, after which rinse in clear water and dry. Do this and your hair will be glossy and fluffy and take on that rich blonde tint so pleasing to the eye.

Gertrude J.: The dandruff, itching scalp and brittle, falling hair with split ends of which you complain come from a diseased scalp, due to the presence of germs. The surest way to get rid of these troubles quickly and remove the germs will be to shampoo twice a month with canthrox and rub into your scalp twice a week a quinine hair tonic made by dissolving one ounce of quinoin in a half a pint of alcohol, then adding half a pint of cold water. Use this tonic regularly and it will remove the dandruff and stop irritation, stop your hair from falling out and make it soft and glossy.

Zoa: You must not use face powder if you want a smooth, rosy, healthy complexion. Powder enters the pores, enlarges them and eventually causes coarse, sallow skin—then wrinkles. To have a smooth skin that looks natural and not artificial, you must use a face lotion. I give a splendid recipe for an inexpensive one that's from any drug store: Spirmus, dissolve it in a half pint hot water, adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine. Apply this lotion to your face, neck and arms, rubbing gently a few moments and it will feel a most charming tone to your skin. Spurmax lotion removes the shine that gives a person, even the cheapest, to a sallow skin. If you desire a really charming complexion, just mix fine pure oatmeal with cream to form a paste and rub it over your face, neck and arms. Let dry on and then wash off with clear water. Use this lotion does not. This lotion is fine for cold weather, feeding, giving a perfect protection to a delicate skin from biting winds and changes of weather.

Sylvia: Never wash your hair with soap. The alkali in soap is injurious to the hair, and in time will cut the very hair out of it, causing your hair to become streaky and spilt at the ends. For a really good shampoo, simply dissolve a teaspoon full of canthrox in a cup of hot water, moisten and rinse with clear water. This shampoo lathers abundantly, removes all dirt, dandruff and excess oil, and will leave your hair soft, glossy and fluffy. This shampoo gives so quickly that there is no shampooing a real pleasure. After using canthrox you will imagine your hair has as much hair as you had before. This shampoo powder now need but one of the best hairdressers. After shampooing, an application of quinoin hair tonic will improve very invigorating and refreshing to your scalp.

Celia: You can't expect to appear fascinating with pimples all over your face. During the Winter anyone's blood is likely to become thick and sluggish from the contained poisons, which frequently find an outlet in toe form. This condition can be overcome by taking a good system tonic and blood purifier. An excellent and inexpensive old-fashioned tonic of real merit is made with kardene. Dissolve one ounce of kardene in a half pint alcohol, then add a half cup sugar and enough hot water to make a quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and you will soon feel like a new person, and your complexion will clear and take on a healthy tone.

Kate: (a) Reducing your weight without plenty of exercise and eating may appear quite difficult, but I have a formula that has worked wonders where other remedies have failed. Put four ounces of parmalt in 1½ pints hot water, when cold, strain out the sediment and take a tablespoonful of the liquid before each meal. It is a harmless remedy and leaves the skin free from nastiness. (b) To make your eyes bright and healthy, use cystos eye tonic regularly. It is sold by all druggists.

WIDOW HUNTS MISSING WILL

MRS. EUGENE L. COTTRELL wants to find the man that made the will of the late Eugene L. Cottrell. Please address MRS. EUGENE L. COTTRELL, No. 39 West Tremlett street, Dorchester.

The strange case of a missing will, a widow's search for the missing lawyer who made the will twenty years ago—all these things figure in the strange story of Mrs. Eugene L. Cottrell of No. 39 West Tremlett street, Dorchester, widow of one of Boston's best known restaurant owners. Mr. Cottrell died on Monday, February 28, at the home in Dorchester.

The heirs-at-law are Mrs. Cottrell and her only daughter, Minnie now Mrs. Harry Trott of East Orange, N. J., wife of a wealthy officer in the United Fruit Company at New York.

After the funeral mother and daughter searched for the missing will. It could not be found and has not been found to this day. And so Mrs. Cottrell has advertised in the newspapers for the lawyer who made the will.

"We must find the will," said Mrs. Cottrell to the AMERICAN; "it simply must be found. I shall have nothing now in my old age if the estate is divided according to law, in a case where there is no will. My daughter is already rich, but under the law she would have two-thirds of my husband's property.

"Twenty years ago my husband and I went to a lawyer in Boston. Oh, I would give a great deal if I could remember his name!—and my husband made his will. He realized that I had given what money I had and had worked hard with him to make a success of his North Market restaurant, so he left me all of his property, giving it to our daughter, Minnie.

"We put the will away. A few years later my husband sold his restaurant and retired. We bought this home in Dorchester. My husband left little except our home here. And now the will is gone from me and all on account of that lost will.

"I have no one to appeal to and must hunt and advertise for the lawyer who made my husband's will. He can go to court with me and swear to the contents of the will, I know. I can only hope that the lawyer will see my appeal and come forward."

MAYOR FEARS NO TARIFF TANGLE

SAVANNAH, March 7.—Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston consented to be interviewed during a brief wait in this city as his way home from a vacation in Palm Beach.

Mr. Fitzgerald said he did not believe the revision of the tariff at the extra session of Congress, would result in business stagnation, and believes the democrats at Washington will show "horse sense" in their handling of the problem. Reciprocity with Canada is certain, will become a fact at the extra session.

9 TOWNS VOTE 'NO' ON LIQUOR

Twelve Massachusetts towns changed their attitude on the liquor sales question, according to the latest reports received today from over 200 places which held town meetings yesterday.

Three towns which changed from "No" to "Yes" are Bernardston, Hudson and Winchendon.

Nine towns that dopped into the dry ranks are Orange, Colerain, Barre, Amherst, Hopkinton, Hinsdardston, Grafton, Topsfield and Middleton.

Cohasset had the hottest election in its history. It ended in the defeat of the "reform wine," although Deacon Philander Bates, against whom the attack of the "reformers" was concentrated, had his narrowest escape in thirty-seven years of town office. Bates is still selectman, assessor and overseer of the poor. His candidate for moderator, Harry E. Mapes, was also elected.

The result, as far as Deacon Bates was concerned, was in doubt almost up to the moment the polls closed, for the first time since he began to hold office.

Winthrop Women Win.

In Winthrop the women voters elected their candidate for School Committee, Fred W. Woodcock, well known as a baseball coach, by a splendid majority.

Wakefield went no-license by the biggest majority in ten years. Ashburnham's biggest fight was over tree warden, Charles A. Billings refusing to be removed, the eleventh-hour candidates for the positions of Selectman and Assessor were victors.

Republicans swept the town of Revere. Samuel A. Segee, chairman of the Board of Assessors, who has held political office in Revere for eighteen years, was defeated by William H. Colwell, a real estate man, by a vote of 1,420 to 1,375.

Captain "Bill" Daly, a member of the well-known family of Daly's and Melchers, with sporting interests in Boston for many years, was elected for the fourteenth to the office of Selectman by Andrew A. Cassissa.

Republicans Sweep Revere.

The Republicans retained control of the Board of Selectmen by electing a full board of five members, Ernest Acker, Bruno Harring, Andrew A. Cassissa, Phillip J. Myer and Cornelius S. Greene.

The defeat of Segee and Captain "Bill" Daly was a great surprise to the voters as it was thought both men were so firmly entrenched that their election was certain.

The town voted to remain dry by a vote of no, 1,345; yes, 893.

P. Sarsfield Canniff was the only Democrat elected to office in Watertown. G. Frederick Robinson was re-elected and James D. Evans, a former member of the board, was the other winner. Joseph H. McNally was defeated.

There was a near riot in the Lincoln town meeting when Martin Welsh, sixty, a cattle inspector, mentioned at the charge of prejudice made against him by Dr. S. H. Blodgett of the Boston Homeopathic Hospital, struck Dr. Blodgett full on the jaw. As Welsh stepped back to send in another fist for the doctor, he tripped and fell into a chair, where his friends held him.

THINK THIS IS TRUE? IT'S FROM WINSTED

WINSTED, Ct., March 7.—A North ville woman who drove to New Milford today says she saw a flock of crows formed in a circle and facing the centre, when one crow stood. This crow would bend over and touch his bill to the ground. Those in the circle would then butfaze him. Then he would flap his wings and caw, and his audience would do the same. Once he nearly stood on his bill and the whole circle promptly tried to do likewise. Farmers think the interesting scene in Northville to give local crows lessons on how to get the seventy-seven cent out of the hide. So the farmers will place scarecrows equipped with bells about their fields this Spring.

ITALY IMPRISONS AUSTRIAN SPIES

ROME, March 7.—Two Austrian spies have been arrested upon the Austro-Hungarian-Italian frontier and are being held by the military authorities pending trial, according to telegraphic advices received here to-day from Udine. Owing to the strained relations between Austria and Italy the arrest of the spies has created much excitement.

BOSTON $1,000,000 AUTO SHOW A GREAT EDUCATIONAL EXHIBIT

Big Crowd Views the Latest Makes in Pleasure and Business Cars.

By J. C. KERRISON

If there were any subjects of King Auto not at the Mechanics building yesterday to attend the second day of the ninth annual Automobile show it was because they are to hiding. It seemed during the afternoon and evening that everyone in Boston and most persons from all over New England who have given their allegiance to this ruler, the automobile, were present. Even the snow could not keep them away, and so the king and his manufacturers received the homage due, by almost countless thousands that wandered through the long lanes of motor driven vehicles.

Though the crowd was not as large as that of the opening night, it completely filled the great halls in the Mechanics building and in Horticultural Hall. Nor was the crowd confined to those who own or operate automobiles, nor yet to those who intend buying, for there were other thousands who, though affected to a slight degree with "motoritis" yet either haven't the necessary means, or perhaps the necessary courageom to purchase one of the "devil wagons."

Everything had to be tested by the curious. They climbed into cars and out of them again. They toyed with the levers, brakes, horns and other fittings as familiarly as if the cars really belonged to them. From every point of vantage every car in the show was viewed by almost every one of the thousands present. When they were not trying the cushions of the seats, bouncing up and down, to test the springs or perhaps the shock absorbers, they were wildly straining the muscles in the neck and back in their endeavors to look at the inside workings from underneath.

At that everybody had a good time. There was not a scowling face to be seen anywhere, but rather good nature seemed to permeate the atmosphere, bringing smiles and looks of intense interest to the faces of the curious.

500 Cars on View.

All about the exhibit were the salesmen and demonstrators who seemed to have nothing in the world to do but look wise and answer questions. This seemed such an easy thing to do from the visitors' standpoint that countless millions of questions were asked. Some there were who put their questions direct and concise, showing a knowledge of things talked about, but there were others, and they were in great majority, who asked questions that set one inside the demonstrators tear their hair in distraction.

But the demonstrators were good natured, possibly they had dreamed of the golden harvest they would reap, and answered all comers to the best of their ability and then went looking for more question askers. They liked it, or at least they appeared to like it, for when things were a little dull at their particular seattons, they got out and hustled for questions.

The management of the show claims that nearly 500 pleasure automobiles and about 300 motor trucks are on exhibition in the two buildings. This may be true, but to the casual observer it seemed that there must be at least thousands of machines of all kinds and makes. Wherever the eye roamed, wherever the feet turned were automobiles, automobiles, nothing but automobiles.

It is the greatest show ever. Never in Boston has there been an automobile show like it. The management and the Automobile Dealers Association have done things with a lavish hand, and almost every automobile manufacturer in the country and many from outside are represented.

Though the New York and Chicago automobile shows had more floor space, the exhibits were less, and dealers and manufacturers who exhibited at those other shows say that this is the biggest, indeed and best, and that they expect to do more business than in the other two places put together.

Very little Manager Chester Campbell has overdone. The loss for months been engaged in making preparations for this greatest of all automobile shows. For days past he has had a corps of decorators at work transforming the bare brick walls of the great Mechanics Hall and the Horticultural Hall into bowers of flowers, with the result that a person not knowing that he was at an automobile show might for a moment almost imagine himself at some beautiful country estate with automobiles parked about among the flower-covered trees.

But the beautiful part of the show is not the beginning, for beauty does not always mean money, and primarily it is money that the manufacturers and dealers are striving for and exhibiting for.

As an educational exhibit this year's automobile show cannot be beaten. One must examine the different classes of cars to become familiar with the progress that has been made in horseless vehicles during the past few years. The old automobiles that were such a novelty to everybody a few years ago now look like veritable arks beside the new 1911 models with their beautiful lines, their intricate working parts, their almost noiseless machinery.

A Liberal Education.

Men, women and children may learn by a visit to the automobile show of the greatest line of progress made in any industrial line. A study of the automobile and its parts would in itself give a person a liberal education, for following it from the time the first motor vehicle came out of the factory up to the present time, when thousands upon thousands travel over the roads of this country and every other country, one sees the immense advance made in gas engines in steam engines and in electricity.

Most wonderful of all is the advance made in the open high power express trucks, those great vehicles that move the merchandise of trade about as easily as though but moving a few feathers. At first, when automobiles were in their infancy and but crude affairs, so far as their engines and motive power are concerned, it was predicted that they might be all right for quality people to ride in, but they would be of little value in commercial life. That fact has been disproved, for to-day there is no line of work that cannot be tested to the automobile truck. The heaviest of heavy merchandise can be drawn by hard-worked horses, is now pulled along easily by these giants in steel and wood.

Jumping from the big three and five ton trucks to the little 1-tonnable which is shown in the basement at the Mechanics' building, one sees the extreme models. The great freight truck seems like a giant beside the pigmy runabouts, which, however, shows to particularly well, so far as mechanical devices and finish of manufacture goes with all the higher priced and higher power cars.

One of the exhibits shows an ambulance motor vehicle. This machine is fitted with all the appliances that a hospital surgeon could possibly desire for emergency cases. It is fitted to make high speed without jolting. Its equipment it includes a cot with rubber tire rollers and pneumatic mattress and pillows, extra stretcher rolled up and hung longitudinally, first aid outfit, splints, emergency equipment, ice tank and two folding seats, arranged so that a position that the surgeon may at all times be in the most convenient position to care for his patient.

In contra distinction to this vehicle of mercy are the fire automobiles. These are being shown by many companies, and mostly take the form of combination hose, motorcycle and chemical engines. They are fitted to make high speed without jolting. Its equipment it includes a cot with rubber tire rollers and pneumatic mattress and pillows, extra stretcher rolled up and hung longitudinally, first aid outfit, splints, emergency equipment, ice tank and two folding seats, arranged so that a position that the surgeon may at all times be in the most convenient position to care for his patient.

The American Locomotive Company is also showing some heavy trucks of the three and five-tone variety. These Alco machines embody all that is new in the art of manufacturing motor vehicles for heavy tracking.

Marmon Exhibit.

A stroll midway down the left center of machinery hall, just beside the main stairway to the basement, is the Marmon exhibit. On the broad top over the stairway are shown eighteen silver trophies won by this fast car in races. The largest trophy standing in the centre of the group is the $10,000 prize race of 200 miles. This was won by Ray Harroun in 1:66.2 minutes, an average of 72.1 miles an hour. The stock chassis 32, which holds the world's record for non-stop road racing of 277 miles, driven by Joe Dawson at Savannah, Ga., November 11,1910, when he attained an average speed of sixty-three miles an hour, is shown and attracts the crowds. It is not a particularly beautiful object from the standpoint of the dentiello, yet in its dirty, oil and gasoline stained chassis may be seen the engine that has driven this machine over the roads in fast enough time to make world's records, and the interest shown in the car by automobile lovers proves that it is not the beautifully finished car, nor the car along the most artistic lines, but the car with the most power, the strongest engine, and the greatest power to make speed, that holds the attention of those who know the automobile from a to z.

Since the inception of the automobile it has been the dream of all manufacturers to get a car with as little friction as possible, and to this end the manufacturers of the motorette which has space to the right of the main entrance have at last, after many years of hard labor, evolved a three-wheel automobile with but a single driving wheel and doing away with a large part of the expensive and complicated rear axle construction, as well as one wheel and tire.

Auto Show Notes

J. A. Kingman of the Locomobile Company of America arrived at the show yesterday afternoon, and unhesitatingly pronounced it the best of the season. He surely knows, as he has visited every big show that has been held in this country this season.

* * *

A. B. Henley, one of the best known of local racingmen, has accepted the position as the head of the truck department of the Whitten-Gilmore Company, New England distributors of the Dayton truck. Mr. Henley is perhaps one of the best posted men in this city and he certainly adds to this enterprising concern is proof positive that it proposes to pay close attention to trucks.

* * *

President and General Sales Manager Hart of the Fisk Rubber Company has returned from the South. The Automobile Company reached the show yesterday morning. He was ready for all kinds of business and has captured the field and that he feels that his company was doing as well as any of them. He was particularly pleased with his polished chassis, which by the way, is unquestionably one of the best in the show, and never fails to attract attention from those who know what a polished chassis really is and what work is placed in the same.

* * *

The Veile March is played twice a day by the orchestras and is creating quite a hit. Messrs Luce and Bornstein are receiving congratulations on their happy thought.

* * *

General Manager Roche of the American Automobile Company of this city had the great satisfaction yesterday of selling two of the American exhibit cars. The white one was purchased by Dr. Flanders of Roxbury, and the second one by W...am Lapworth of Milford.

An exhibition of fast work with the Dodson removable rim is being constantly given by Mut R. Kershin in the balcony in the presence of a large party of spectators and with a disinterested party holding the watch, Kershin made an absolute change of rims in twenty-six seconds last night. It was perhaps the fastest piece of operating that has ever been seen in this city.

* * *

The storm of yesterday interfered not with the attendance. It was most cavalier, everything considered, and to-day, and especially to-night, promises to exceed the record established then. This is milltary night and the great bulk of offers-those wearing militia will be present in full regalia, gold lace and the three months permitted to be worn by general regulations.

* * *

The display of racing cars is a most excellent and attractive one containing as it does several of the most famous performers known to this country.

* * *

F. M. Hobbletts, sales manager of the Alco, was present last evening and will remain "in our midst" for several days. He has always had a particular fondness for the Boston show, and says he will be a constant fixture here.

* * *

Another Boston newspaper man who has made good in the motor world and who comes back to Boston with honors is John D. Murphy, advertising manager of the Selden Company. Murphy comes back loaded with both copy and energy, and with the reputation of having made good.

* * *

Louis R. Spear, former president of the American Automobile Association, was an enthusiastic visitor last night. He gave most of his attention to the commercial vehicle department. "Great advance has been made in this branch of the industry," said Mr. Spear. "No merchant need longer hesitate in supplanting his horses with motor trucks. I have proven in my own business that the motor truck will save 25 per cent. of the hauling bills. I am using a five-ton Morgan and it has replaced one four-horse and two two-horse teams. When one considers the narrow streets and crowded traffic conditions, he can readily see the advantage Boston will derive when the motor truck is generally adopted. It will mean the removal from the streets of two-thirds of the number of vehicles at present in use."

* * *

"The day of the horseless wagon is here. Motor trucks are now successfully operated throughout the entire business world," says Bernard Grusburg of the Grusbursky Company. "It has been proven conclusively that horse and wagon delivery system is the slowest, most expensive and most reliable form of transportation. It needs no argument to show that the horse is a constant expense. Except in rare cases they do not earn money Sundays or holidays, so sick and spare horses are not earning money. Horse equipment must be maintained whether business is active or dull. With a motor truck no money for upkeep is necessary does not demand the operation of the car."

* * *

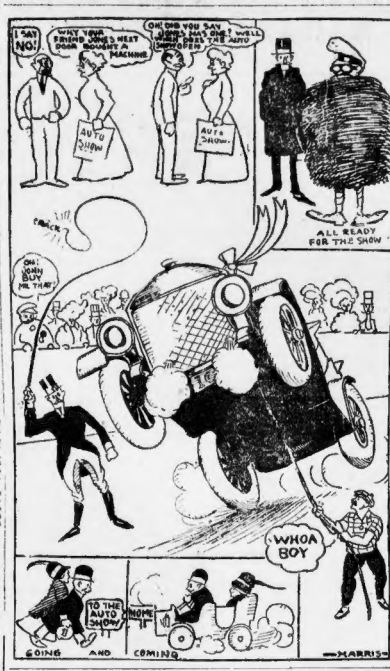
Harry Noyes returned from his Southern trip yesterday in season to be present at the first real business day of the show. He was well received by his old friend Jack Johnson and the entire Buick force, which, just to celebrate his return made a few sales of the Buick cars and trucks.

* * *

Sales Manager Churchill of the Winton company has come and got into camp right on time and he was mighty well pleased with the local affairs. He says this will be the greatest motor year in the history of the industry.

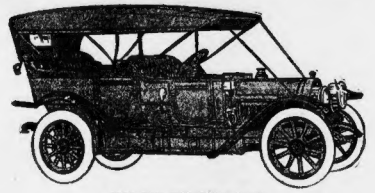
* * *

The men who are present at the show from the Pierce plant are Robert Patterson and Edward Hollander. Mr. Thomas, who has done considerable toward developing the worm-gear drive in the motor truck, and W. G. Lavin.



NO FINE CAR IN AMERICA, SAVE THIS, CAN OFFER YOU THE SUPREME EFFICIENCY OF A

Perfect Valveless Motor



30-50 TOY TONNEAU, $4,300

Amplex

VALVELESS—SELF-STARTING

Any one of half a dozen fine cars will afford you all your heart desires in luxury and refinement and smartness.

So will the Amplex—but, in addition to these externals, it brings you a degree of motor efficiency higher than you have ever discovered in any four-cycle car.

And in comparison with the tremendous advantages made possible only by the Amplex valveless, two-cycle motor, the importance of other considerations fades away like fog before the sun.

Imagine a car that is absolutely free from trouble, so far as valves are concerned—because it has no valves—

An engine that never falls off in power or falls at some critical moment when the need for power is greatest—because it has no valves—

A motor that pulls with the steady, ceaseless turning power of an electric motor—because it has no valves.

Imagine your ease of mind if you had no valves to watch over and carbon to remedy—to grind and adjust and repair—in order to insure full efficiency from your engine.

Think of these advantages—and you will admit that they are overwhelming, won't you?

Add to them the comfort and satisfaction that ownership of a truly fine car affords, and you will begin to have a fairly adequate idea of the Amplex.

In the entire field of America's highest grade cars, the Amplex is the only one that has the advantage in the one great essential—the valveless motor.

Spend at least enough time at the Amplex exhibit in Mechanics Hall to understand and appreciate this remarkable car.

BALLINGER RESIGNS; IS PRAISED BY TAFT

Then I will take it up and answer you at length."

Under date of March 6, Secretary Ballinger sent the following letter to the President:

Ballinger Again Writes.

"As you fully appreciate, I entered the Government service under protest and at great personal sacrifice.

"While occupying the office of Secretary of the Interior my most earnest and conscientious attention has been given to the interests of the Government, and I feel that in constructive work and the advancement of the public service under existing difficulties, I have nothing to regret, in official administration, except that my health and financial interests have greatly suffered, to the extent that I can no longer sustain the burden.

"Your constant support has always been a source of consolation to me during the vicissitudes of my term of service, and I deeply appreciate the unfailing confidence you have reposed in me. I must, however, renew my appeal as set forth in my letter of January 19 last, and respectfully ask you to designate the time when my resignation shall take effect, which I hope may be immediately."

The President Accepts.

Under date of to-day President Taft in the following letter accepted Mr. Ballinger's resignation:

He said:

"I accept your resignation with great reluctance. I have had the fullest opportunity to know you, your standard of service to the government and the public, to know your motives, to know how you have administered your office and to know the motives of those who have assailed you. I do not hesitate to say that you have been the object of one of the most unscrupulous conspiracies for the defamation of character that history can show.

"I have deemed it my duty not only to the government but to society in general to fight out this battle to the end, confident that in the end your fellow citizens would see that the impressions of you as a man, as the administrator of a high public office, were false and were the result of a malicious and unprincipled plan for the use of the press to misrepresent you and your actions, and to torture every circumstance, however free from detrimental significance, into proof of corrupt motive.

"Hypocritical Pretence.

"With the hypocritical pretence they did not accuse you of corruption, in order to avoid the necessity that even the worst criminal is entitled, to wit, that of a definitely formulated charge of some misconduct, they showered you with suspicion, and by most petrifogging methods exhibited to the public matters which had no relevancy to an issue of either corruption or inefficiency in office, but which paraded before an hysterical body of headline readers served to blacken your character and to obscure the proper issue of your honesty and effectiveness as a public servant. The result has been a cruel tragedy. You and yours have lost health and have been burdened financially.

"The conspirators, who have not hesitated in the pursuit of you to resort to the meanest of methods, including the corruption of your most confidential assistant, pride themselves as the only good members of society, actuated by the spirit of self-sacrifice for their fellow men.

"Every fiber of my nature rebels against such hypocrisy and nerves me to fight such a combination and such methods to the bitter end, lest success in this instance may form demoralizing precedent.

"I Am Object of the Attack."

"But personal consideration for you and yours makes me feel that I have no right to ask you for their sacrifice. Of course it had been made evident that I was and am the ultimate object of the attack; and to bear against your will on your remaining in office, with the prospects of further efforts against you, is to selfishly impose on you more of a burden than I ought to impose.

"As I say farewell to you, let me renew my expression of affection and abiding respect for you and of my profound gratitude for your hard work and your unvarying loyalty, and your effective public service. I hope and pray that success may attend you in your profession and that real happiness will come to you and yours when you return to that community where you live and whose members know your work, as a man and a citizen, and who will receive you again with open arms."

It is understood at the White House that Secretary Ballinger verbally presented his resignation to President Taft last Fall and this accounts for the President referring to Mr. Ballinger again offering his resignation.

BALLINGER LED STORMY LIFE AS PUBLIC OFFICIAL

The public career of Richard Achilles Ballinger, the Secretary of the Interior, who has just resigned, has been more tempestuous than that of any other cabinet official since the days of reconstruction. Since March 4, 1909, the Secretary of the Interior, has been the subject of innumerable magazine and newspaper attacks aimed at him by men high in public life who disagreed with him but not denounce the methods of the man from Seattle.

Secretary Ballinger came to the front in public life in 1900-02 when he was made United States commissioner in the State of Washington. This was due to his political activity. Previously Ballinger had practiced law in Alabama and had been engaged in manufacturing a book of which he did not score any great success. He went to Fort Townsend, Wash., a custom house town just across the Canadian border, in the early eighties and there resumed the practice of law, making a specialty of land and mining claim cases.

In 1894 he was made a judge of the Superior Court for Jefferson county, Washington, and served until 1897. He was elected Mayor of Seattle.

Mayor of Seattle.

He was elected Mayor of Seattle in 1904 and served until 1906. A year later he was appointed chief of the United States land office by President Roosevelt and remained in that capacity until 1908, when he was elevated to the Cabinet by President Taft.

The Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, over which the fires of Ballinger's enemies have raged for two years, began with the removal of Secretary Ballinger, within a few weeks after he became Secretary of the Interior, to withdraw from entry certain coal lands in Alaska, the public lands for what is called "ranger sites," at the request of Gifford Pinchot, the chief of the forestry service of the United States.

President Taft substantiated Ballinger in spite of almost overwhelming evidence that he had been recreant to his public trust, and thereafter rumors after rumor followed that Ballinger would resign and free the President from further embarrassment. This Ballinger doggedly refused to do and met the queries of the newspaper men with verbal broadsides on the honesty of his position and the fact that time would vindicate his actions.

Approved by Majority.

The upshot of the controversy was a congressional investigation. The inquiry represented by twelve members of the Senate and House of Representatives. After many delays this committee brought in a report which substantially read:

Richard A. Ballinger is vindicated. The Secretary of the Interior has been unjustly accused by Gifford Pinchot, James R. Garfield and Louis Glavis. He is the right man in the right place, and he ought to be invited to continue holding down the job as long as he cares to have it."

Previous to this, however, a minority, represented by Congressmen Madison of Kansas, Denver of Kentucky, Graham of Illinois and Senators Purcell of North Dakota and Fletcher of Florida issued a report which was given wide publicity and won general assent in the justice. It was to the effect that "Secretary Ballinger had violated his oath of office and should be dismissed from the public service."

Ballinger's Defenders.

The committeemen who favored the retention of Ballinger and "whitewashed" his connection with the Cunningham claims and the defrcentation of 180,000,000 acres of government land, which precipitated Pinchot's resignation, were as follows:

Senator Knute Nelson, Minnesota; Senator Frank J. Flint, California; Senator Elihu Root, New York. Nevada Representative Samuel W. McCall, Massachusetts; Representative Nicholas Longworth, Michigan; Representative Martin E. Olmsted, Pennsylvania.

Secretary Ballinger recently said in a speech in Beaver:

"When I get footloose fro mpublic office, I intend to devote a part of my time to getting even. America owes a debt to those of the purity of the lives of my traducers. The public is entitled to know the hidden springs of inspiration which guides in torrents of spittle particularly from these self-appointed moralists, and I shall heartily enjoy using the 'searlight' when the proper season comes."

The public exposure is now awaited in Washington.

WALTER L. FISHER, NEW SECRETARY, NOTED REFORMER

Walter Lowrie Fisher, the new Secretary of the Interior, is forty-nine years old and a well known Chicago lawyer. He came to Chicago in 1884 from West Virginia, where he was born. He was graduated from Hanover College in Indiana. He studied law in the office of Wirt Dexter. In 1891 he was married in Boston to Miss Mabel Taylor.

He has been special assessment attorney of Chicago, member of the executive committee of the Municipal Voters' League, special traction counsel for the city of Chicago. He is identified with the Chicago progressive young reform movement in Chicago as a leader. He is a Republican in national politics.

EX-MAYOR QUINCY TO BE CHIEF SPEAKER

Former Mayor Josiah Quincy will deliver the principal address at a mass meeting to be held in Faneuil Hall, Sunday evening, in support of the cause of "Home Rule for Ireland." The greatest enthusiasm prevails in connection with the demonstration which is expected to arouse anew the interest of all the friends of Ireland in Greater Boston. The meeting will be called to order by Augustine J. Daly, president of the Boston Central Branch of the United Irish League. Monsignor O'Callaghan of South Boston will be among the speakers. The John Boyle O'Reilly Cadets of Charlestown, in uniform, with their band, will march from their rooms in Charlestown to the meeting. The band will render a program of National airs during the meeting.

FEAR BRIDGE WILL BE SWEPT TO SEA

NEWBURYPORT, March 7.—"Mile Bridge," which connects Salisbury Beach and Hampton Beach, N. H., is in grave danger of being washed out to sea, according to a report made by the Salisbury Beach life savers. The life savers discovered that nine piles had been washed loose and were battering against the bridge and that numerous others were being loosened. The bridge is used for street railway traffic only.

TAFT DELAYS NAMING LOWELL SUCCESSOR

WASHINGTON, March 7.—President Taft will not make a nomination of the successor to the late United States Circuit Court Judge Lowell until after Congress convenes in April. This is in conformity with his practice of making no recess appointments of United States judges.

RUSH TROOPS TO CAMORRA TRIAL

VITERBO, March 7.—Martial law was proclaimed here to-day. The town is patrolled by cavalry and carabineers. Houses are being searched by the troops and sentries pace back and forth before the residence of the president of the assize court and the crown's counsel. Additional troops are being sent here from Rome and Italian barrack towns.

The crown counsellor, who is prosecuting Enrico Alfano and his forty associate members of the Camorra, has received many threats of death. One letter was written in a red fluid evidently human blood. The life of the judge has also been threatened.

A cordon of troops is kept on guard about the prison. No one is permitted within 500 feet unless bearing an official permit.

ADMIRAL TRILLEY DEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—Rear Admiral Joseph Trilley, retired, is dead here. He was seventy-three years old. He served through the Civil War and rose from the ranks.

GALE WRECKS LYNN YACHT

Breaking from her Water anchorage on the Lynn Yacht Club, the two-masted yacht Melvin, owned by Patrolman Merrell of the Lynn police force, was driven by wind and tide across the bay early to-day and smashed up against the breakwater at Winthrop.

Patrolman Merrell did not know of his loss until informed by members of the club. The Melvin had strained at her anchor chain until it snapped.

Soon after the Melvin was discovered ashore Captain Franklin Hamilton and his crew from the United States life saving station at Clay Point, who are in Winter quarters at Winthrop, boarded her with some difficulty owing to the heavy coating of ice in which she was encased. They found her sails and gear neatly stowed and that her hull had been lately scraped, but not seriously. The life savers have patched the vessel up and she can be floated at the next high tide.

SLIGO CLUB SUPPER.

A complimentary supper and dance will be given to-morrow evening in Paine Memorial building by the Sligo Social Club to the members of the Wild Rose of Lough Gill Society.

BOMB EXPLODES IN FALL RIVER

FALL RIVER, March 7.—A bomb was exploded just outside the home of Antone Gorgino at No. 571 Anthony street early to-day in what the police believe was an attempt to kill the family.

The explosion occurred just after daylight. The family of Gorgino were stunned by its force, but fortunately no one was injured. The bomb was placed on the west side of the house. It wiped out twenty feet of fence, shattered every window in the house and rocked every dwelling in the vicinity.

The police have a suspect under surveillance. They refuse to give out his name. He is believed to be a young man who was in love with Gorgino's daughter. The girl had forbidden him to call. Last night a young man sought entrance to the house. This was denied. Soon after he departed toward this end. The police may arrest the suspect any time now.

Gorgino is well liked. So far as he knows he has no enemies. He has no theory, except that a rumor that the bomb was planted by the Black Hand is impossible.

Miss Martha LaRue, a neighbor, was sitting at her window when the explosion took place. She told the police that she had been at the window for some time and had seen anyone in the vicinity. This leads the police to believe that the bomb was planted before daylight and exploded with a long fuse.

The bomb was a big one. The police say that it was of high power, and had it been placed in the house itself would have leveled the building and killed everybody in it.

MRS. WARREN'S SUIT TO SUPREME COURT

PROVIDENCE, March 7. The divorce case of Mrs. Mary A. Warren against Edward M. Warren, the wealthy real estate promoter of Boston, has been carried to the Supreme Court to-day. The case involved widespread attention when it was tried in the Superior Court before Judge Baker. It occupied nearly all Summer. After weeks of bitter fighting between the prominent counsel involved in the case, Mrs. Warren finally was given a decision.

A Want Ad is often the road to fortune.

ARREST SAVES ALFONSO'S LIFE

MADRID, March 7.—It became known here to-day that an attempt to assassinate King Alfonso was narrowly frustrated yesterday at Alcazar de San Juan.

Anarchist plotters had made all plans to kill Alfonso when he arrived at that point on the royal train proceeding to the south of Spain. Only a few hours before the train was due at Alcazar de San Juan the authorities learned of the conspiracy and arrested the would-be assassin just as he was leaving his home to go to the railroad station.

He had been chosen by lot to attempt the life of the King. The train arrived fifteen minutes after the Anarchist was locked up.

The prisoner was brought to Madrid and though him the authorities expect to get still the names of leaders in the wide spread revolutionary conspiracy. He is believed to be a member of the same gang which recently attempted the life of the King.

The prisoner attempted to commit suicide in his cell. A quantity of poison was taken away from him.

RENAUX QUALIFIES FOR MICHELIN PRIZE

PARIS, March 7.—Eugene Renaux, one of the youngest and most daring aviators of France, to-day qualified for the Michelin prize of $20,000, fulfilling the perilous conditions of flying from St. Cloud to the heights of Puy de Dome Mountain, a distance of 200 miles, carrying a passenger with him. The passenger was M. Senouque and the flight was made in a biplane with but one motor. The trip was made in a few hours and fifty minutes, or half an hour less than the prescribed time of six hours. The peak upon which the landing was made is 4,806 feet high.

MISS MORGAN'S VISIT MYSTIFIES

Boston society and philanthropists are interested in the presence in town of Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, who was registered at the Touraine, and in the absence of definite knowledge of a reason for her visit are wondering why the daughter of the financier king is here.

Soon after she arrived at the hotel, Miss Morgan left the Touraine and was absent from her apartments until a late hour at night. She returned to New York to-day.

So far as known Miss Morgan had no social engagements, and those interested in philanthropic and sociological work jumped to the conclusion that her visit here had to do with such work, although no report of this sort with which she is connected will be in sympathy is being circulated.

Those who know Miss Morgan's deep interest in the social welfare of workers believe her visit here may be due to her desire to personally study conditions in this city. New York, she has been actively interested in the welfare of the employes at the Morgan Yards and Miss Morgan, with the aid of the Navy Department a recreation room for the men.

THE LOWEST ADVERTISING RATE IN NEW ENGLAND

No newspaper in New England reaches for its advertisers as many readers at as low a cost as does

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

It costs an advertiser but one and one-hundredths cents ($.0101) per inch per thousand circulation, or seven-hundred-twenty-five thousandths of a mill ($.000725) per agate line per thousand circulation.

From the most reliable statistics available the BOSTON AMERICAN is surpassed in the lowness of its advertising rate (and then only by a slight margin) by only two newspapers in America—the New York Journal and the Portland (Oregon) Journal, a paper with 37,161 circulation.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is subject to the most rigid investigation by anyone at any time.

TORIES ATTACK RECIPROCITY

LONDON, March 7.—Another Tory attack on the reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada, was made in the House of Lords by Lord Ampthill who strongly condemned what he termed the inaction of the Government, which, he declared, had forced Canada to abandon her national policy and offer to the United States the advantages which she had so freely given to Great Britain.

Commercial union between the United States and Canada, he thought, must also mean political union. "The astounding situation created," he said "was that responsible statesmen in a foreign country have spoken openly in their parliaments of the future annexation of a portion of the Crown's domains without a protest from this country."

Viscount Morley warmly defended both the Government and Ambassador Bryce, saying that criticism of the latter was grossly unjust. "The most extraordinary statements in both America and Canada," said Morley, "have inspired no faith of annexation."

He added that the papers on the subject soon would be laid upon the table and these would show that the action of the British ambassador was justified by a precedent and did not constitute a new departure.

NERVOUSNESS

Can Be Cured by Building Up the Blood.

This Is the Tonic Treatment for Nervous Trouble Which Is Meeting with Such Great Success.

Since most common nervous troubles are caused by a defect in the blood, to cure them at the root the blood defect must be corrected. So when a physician gives a medicine for the nerves he gives something that will act on the blood in such a way that the nerves will benefit.

There is, therefore, no mystery about the fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are both a blood-builder and a nerve tonic, nothing unrecognized by science in the power of these pills to cure severe nervous disorders as well as diseases of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a specific for anemia, or deficiency of blood. Hence they are a remedy for all nervous diseases which result from, or thrive under, anemic conditions.

The success of the tonic treatment through the blood is thus described by Mrs. Charles Fenton, whose address is R. F. D. No. 1, Dayton, Ohio. She says:

"I suffered from nervousness for five years and was under the doctors' care at different times but they did not cure me. I became so nervous that I could not control my feelings and would often cry without any cause. I had dizzy spells and would fall over. My stomach was weak and food would lie like a weight on it. I had severe cramps and was troubled with a backached a great deal and there were terrible pains at the base of my head. I was short of breath on the least exertion and suffered from palpitation of the heart. My head would ache for two or three days steadily when I could not raise it from the pillow without feeling that I was raising the pillow with my head. After I had been sick for some time a rash broke out on my body.

"A druggist at Springfield, Ohio, where I was then living, told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they soon relieved me. I kept on with them until I had taken several boxes and was cured."

For further proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done in severe nervous disorders send for our booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System," which is free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

"Mikado" Stars to Reappear

Former stage stars who played with The Bostonians and other theatrical organizations are to return to the footlights as amateurs, to play "The Mikado" at one matinee performance at the Shubert Theatre. In the cast will appear only members of the Professional Women's Club of Boston. The proceeds will go into the clubhouse fund. The members are all prominent in social circles and a brilliant gathering is assured. The opera will be given on April 6, at 2 o'clock.

The members are making elaborate preparations, and rehearsals have been started. Some of the players have long been familiar with their roles, and their experience and histrionic and musical talent should make the production of the dainty Gilbert and Sullivan piece both a dramatic and a financial success.

Need a New Home.

The idea of giving the opera is the result of the ambition of the club women to establish a home of their own. At the present time the club holds its meetings at the Hotel Touraine and in Pauline Hall. The members expect to realize about $1,000 from the performance. Last Winter they gave an excellent production of "Masks and Faces."

The part of Yum Yum has been assigned to Mrs. Marie Celeste Stranahan, who as Marie Celeste was the original San Toy in the Frohman production of the opera of the same name. Miss Bertha Wesselhoeft Swift, a Vincent Club girl, is to be the "Mikado." Miss Katherine Ricker, the well-known contralto, will sing Pish Tush, and Mrs. Edith McGregor Woods, formerly the charming contralto with the Bostonians, will be in the role of Katisha. Miss Lilian McDonald will be Ko Ko. Miss Evelyn Blake is to be the Nanki-Poo. Miss Katherine Hunt, once a popular singer of children's songs, will be cast as Pitti Sing. Miss Edith Munroe, the well-known church soloist, will play the part of Peep Bo. Pooh Bah is the only role in the opera which has not been assigned. The principals are to be assisted by an excellent chorus.

An orchestra of club members will interpret the score. Mrs. James Gilbert is coaching the players and is to direct the orchestra. Mrs. Lilla Vilas Wyman is in charge of the dancing. The chorus will be under the direction of Miss Katherine Crockett and Miss Lucina Jewell. Miss Katherine Connor is to design the advertisement posters and programs. The decorations will consist of Japanese figures.

The committee in charge includes Miss Cora Colburn, chairman; Dr. Eliza Cobill, Mrs. Marie Burrows Currier, Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, widow of former mayor George H. Hibbard, and Miss Bertha Wesselhoeft Swift.

The play committee is: Mrs. Marie Burrows Currier, chairman; Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, Miss Bertha Wesselhoeft Swift, Mrs. Marie Celeste Stranahan and Mrs. Edith McGregor Woods.

BAKLANOFF HERE FOR THE LAST TIME

"Lakme" was sung at the Boston Opera last night, with Lydia Lipkowska, Edward Clement and George Baklanoff in the chief roles. It was the farewell appearance of Baklanoff, for the popular baritone will sail next Saturday for Europe. There was a large audience which gave Baklanoff a large measure of applause. The performance was directed by Andre Caplet, and was excellent in all respects. Lipkowska, Baklanoff and Clement repeated their familiar interpretations of the various roles.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., March 7.—A wild race for life took place on the Danbury division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad when the locomotive and caboose of a large freight were run down the grade from Branchville to this place, a distance of ten miles, in as many minutes. Jay W. Mallory, one of the brakemen, had a chicken bone lodged in his windpipe while eating dinner. He shut off his wind and he immediately commenced to strangle. Engineer Wilkinson took the caboose in tow and, after telegraphing ahead, started on the mad rush against death to this place.

Mallory will recover.

NEW O'MEARA VICE TREATISE

Police Commissioner O'Meara has just issued another report on the immorality of Boston. This time he reviews the attempt of the police to come with the situation in this city since December 1, 1907. The report is printed in a fifty-page pamphlet and is issued by the city.

It is supposed that this review was called forth by the criticism that followed Mr. O'Meara's recent annual report in which he admitted that the police could do little to deal with the business of "modernized vice."

Commissioner O'Meara in his preface to his pamphlet takes occasion to point out that Boston has been for 200 years, and prints excerpts from the records to show it. The first historical reference to vice in Boston crops up by the commissioner had to do with three young women who were publicly whipped and then fined ten shillings. Boston had but 10,000 population then—150 years ago.

After some other quotations, one of which showed that Boston must have been a pretty bad place sixty years ago, the commissioner concluded his introduction to the review of police work with the statement:

"These few historical notes chosen from many that might be used to show that in Boston, as elsewhere, public immorality is deep-rooted. It has outlived all agencies employed for its extermination, from the whipping post of bodily punishment to the probation system of moral suasion. It will survive as long as there are bad men and women whose vices offer a means of profit.

"It can be held in check and perhaps gradually reduced wherever the laws, the courts and the police faithfully and intelligently co-operate. Over the first two I have no control; for the police I have such authority and responsibility. The record of their work in recent years is in the pages which follow and the quality of that work is at the judgment of every reader."

BOSTON BAPTISTS LOSING IN NUMBERS

The Rev. Walter Calley of the Jamaica Plain Baptist Church and Frank W. Padelford of the Massachusetts Baptist Missionary Society stated at the meeting and banquet of the Boston Baptist Union in Ford Hall that the people of their religious denomination in Greater Boston were facing a serious problem as a result of the decrease in numbers during the last ten years. Dr. Calley said that in the last ten years there has been in Greater Boston churches a 10 per cent. decrease in attendance and a 40 per cent. financial decrease.

HANLEY EXONERATED IN SHOOTING CASE

Chief Justice Bolster of the municipal court has filed a report of an inquest exonerating Patrolman Patrick J. Hanley in the fatal shooting of Richard Gallivan, a fellow patrolman of Division 2. The shooting happened on the night of February 7 and Chief Justice Bolster says that Patrolman Hanley was not negligent, and that there is no evidence to justify a criminal prosecution. The only witness against him is a man whom he had under arrest when the fatal shot was fired.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR AUTO COMPANY

Referee Olmstead of the U. S. Bankruptcy Court appointed James E. Ryder of the National Shawmut Bank and Attorney O. S. Reinstein to be receivers of the Percy Ford Company, dealers in automobile supplies with stores on Columbus and Massachusetts Avenues. It was stated today that the liabilities of the concern will total $76,000.

COLUMBIA RECEIVES $2,000,000 IN GIFTS

NEW YORK, March 7.—Gifts amounting to nearly $2,600,000 have come to Columbia University. Among the largest gifts was $330,000 from an anonymous donor, to the School of Architecture.

COMMITTEE ON CRIME FLAYED

MIDDLEBORO, March 7.—Charges that the town's money was being wasted for automobile "joy rides" and in hiring detectives to commit crimes, were made at the most exciting town meeting held here in many years. The town Committee for the Suppression of Crime had asked the meeting to appropriate $400 to carry on its work.

Speakers charged that the committee employed "spotter" evidence in a futile effort to stop liquor selling in the town.

Another charge was made that the committee "white washed" a charge made by a Middleboro mother against a married man on behalf of her little daughter.

It was charged that a Boston detective, J. L. Greenleaf, was hired by the committee at an expense of $250 to get liquor evidence against one man, and that the party refused to accept the evidence.

The members of the committee said nothing during the excitement, and when the article was put to a vote, the committee got a vote of 202 to 141, they being retained and the $400 voted them to continue their work.

BILLS FAVORED BY MAYOR DEFEATED

The Legislative Committee on Cities reported adversely to the Senate on two bills which Mayor Fitzgerald wanted enacted. One asked for a definition of a tenement house under the Boston building laws and the other asks for authority for the city of Boston to take land for a new police station and court house in East Boston.

LYNN MAN IN BANKRUPTCY.

Henry McDermott has been petitioned into bankruptcy at the United States District Court. He has been conducting a business known as the Peerless Cement Company at Lynn. Liabilities were fixed at $25,864.52.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine.

Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to INSIST upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies it under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and derangements, giving rise to frequent headache, backache, dragging-down pain or distress and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostation, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Favorite Prescription." The dishonest dealer sometimes insists that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

DEMOCRATIC GAINS IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., March 7.—Striking features of the annual elections in eleven of Maine's twenty cities were the overturn in Bath and Democratic victories in six cities. One city, Saco, continues Citizen-Democratic and four mayors are Republican. Bath has had but four Democratic Mayors since its incorporation in 1848, and Frank A. Small, a shipbuilder, was given a plurality over Clarence A. Peaslee larger than his opponent's total vote. The landslide swept the city, giving the Democrats six out of the seven wards.

Mayors elected and complexion of new city governments:

| City. | Mayor. | Pol. Cty. Gov. |
|---|---|---|
| Auburn | Irving L. Merrill | R. R. |
| Bath | Frank A. Small | D. D. |
| Gardiner | Walter E. Garcelon | D. D. |
| Ellsworth | Charles H. Leland | D. Tied |
| Rockland | C. Ben Lamb | D. R. |
| Hallowell | Lorer O. Reade | R. R. |
| Lewiston | Frank M. Morey | R. R. |
| Rockland | C. Herbert Blethen | R. R. |

SOUTH BOSTON GIRLS SEEKING MISSING PET DOG

Does any one know where a little brown Boston bull terrier named Twinkles can be found?

Eight-year-old Florence Wood, an invalid daughter of Mrs. Florence J. Wood of No. 123 F street, South Boston, has lost Twinkles. Nothing in the world can take the place of the pet in the little girl's home.

Mrs. Wood, the mother, has promised to buy another doggy just like Twinkles, but Florence says if she can't get her pet back she doesn't want to have any.

Gladys Wood, an older sister of the little girl, is the innocent cause of all the trouble, according to little Florence, because Gladys took Twinkles out without a leash.

Florence looks at the loss philosophically. She does not censure her older sister too much for losing Twinkles, because she says she wouldn't put a leash on her pet if she herself were going to take her out.

"I don't want another dog if Twinkles can't be found," says the little girl. "Every time I pick up the ball she used to play with I have to cry, for I see her teeth marks in the leather. Twinkles used to play for hours with me and the ball. I don't know what I'll do if Twinkles cannot be found. If Twinks were not locked up with some strangers I'm sure she would come back to me."

Twinkles is a brown Boston bull terrier, with a white blaze over her right eye. She is eight months old. She is very playful with children. She weighs ten pounds.

MONTH MORE FOR M'CARTHY

Surveyor of the Port Jeremiah J. McCarthy is to hold over as surveyor until June 1 instead of making way for his successor, Edward G. Graves, on April 1, when his term officially expires. When Graves was appointed McCarthy protested to the treasury department against going out of office until June 1 on the ground he had not begun his administration until that date twelve years ago.

TRYON PREDICTS NO ANNEXATION

"Canada will never be annexed to the United States, and the Canadian people are more than ever eager to maintain the identity and the traditions of the British Empire," says Dr. James L. Tryon, assistant secretary of the American Peace Society, who has just returned from a month's journey through Canada. On all sides he found a deep admiration for the interests of the United States, but upon no occasion did he find any enthusiasm over annexation.

"On every side I met representative persons who expressed great interest in the affairs of the United States," said Mr. Tryon, "but nowhere were they anxious to lose themselves in the government of the United States.

"On all sides Canadians have the kindest feelings toward this country, but feel that they must retain their own government, and whatever unity there is between these two countries will be a spiritual and moral relationship.

"They like their monarchical government. They have no desire to become a republic in any sense of that term. They keep their laws separated from any political influence. This is noticeable in all their details of government.

"Closer relations may be established between Canada and the United States on matters of industrial arbitration and the peace movement.

"I look for the development of a large peace movement in that country. That will soon have their peace societies and will doubtless co-operate with us in this movement. While there I did not attempt to organize any society, but set out general principles of peace between nations. I found enough to get their interest and their support."

ATLAS FREE TO AMERICAN READERS

Readers of the Boston American should take notice to-day of the advertisement on another page of the free offer made by J. Q. Adams & Co., distributors of Webster's New International Dictionary, which is now from cover to cover, and, as Chancellor Day of Syracuse University says, is the perfection of the dictionary art.

Those readers taking advantage of this special offer will receive absolutely free a copy of the 1911 New Reference Atlas of the World, containing new colored maps showing every country and civil division on the face of the globe, together with latest maps and illustrated descriptions of the Panama Canal, with latest maps and plans, published by one of the best known map publishers in the world.

This is a chance to get the very latest and finest dictionary and atlas, together forming a table reference library, at a remarkably small price and ever terms. Cut the coupon from the advertisement on another page at once, fill in name and address, and forward it to J. Q. Adams & Co., 120 Boylston street, Boston, Mass. —Adv.

ATHOL MAN CLAIMS HEN LAYING RECORD

Tarrytown, N. Y., must surrender its latest claim to distinction. It no longer has the record-breaking hen. Tarrytown claimed that recently sixty of its hens laid 1,039 eggs in twenty-eight days. W. Scott Ward of Athol gave a short confirmation when he read the item, and he triumphantly submits the following: "We have sixty-four hens, and they laid during the month of February, in twenty-eight days, 1,039 eggs, which is equivalent to 17 13-14 eggs per hen, whereas 1,039 eggs laid by sixty hens in a similar period is equivalent only to 17 19-60 eggs per hen." Athol awaits statistics from other points in the egg belt.

APPONYI LEAVES GOTHAM FOR HOME

NEW YORK, March 7.—After having delivered sixty lectures on the United States, Count Albert Apponyi, the Hungarian statesman, sailed for Europe to-day on the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm. A large delegation of Hungarians bade him farewell. The Count said: "The American people have treated me very kindly. I was delighted with the great audiences, particularly those at the universities where I lectured."

SANATORIUM BENEFIT.

Of a highly spectacular character will be the entertainment which has been planned for the benefit of the Sharon Sanatorium, and which is to be given at the Boston Opera House on the afternoon of Tuesday, March 28. A large committee is engaged in arranging the details.

SUFFRAGETTE'S GOING AS PUPILS

For the first time in many years Boston is sending pupils instead of missionaries to foreign parts. Boston suffragettes are seeking instruction from their militant sisters in England instead of giving it.

The West Point of the English Suffragettes is located in London and the Boston corps is sending three of its younger officers over for instruction in the latest and most approved methods of Suffragette warfare. The young women detailed for instruction are Miss Alice Carpenter, a graduate of Radcliffe College; Miss Florence Luscomb of Technology, and Miss Margaret Foley, for years an active suffrage worker among the trade unions of Boston. They are going under direction of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English Suffragette leader.

All Active Workers.

Miss Carpenter lives at the College Club, No. 40 Commonwealth avenue. At home with drawing room and college audiences, she now specializes in the line her part is called upon, in a street rally. She has been active in settlement work since graduating from Radcliffe.

Miss Luscomb is the young woman who is undergraduate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, since an expedition to the University of Maine, where she made a sweeping conversion of the engineering in the office of a Cambridge architect.

Have Had Experience.

She was one of the first women of the Hub to employ such militant methods as selling the suffrage papers and pamphlets on Tremont street, during the reign of the "Votes for Women" cartage, addressing street audiences in last Summer's autumn, the tour of the Hub cars and wearing the glaring big yellow equal suffrage button. She organized and trained the class of a dozen suffrage speakers, who will aid in next Summer's campaign.

Margaret Foley is familiar to crackerbox audiences from Fall River to Spring field. An employe of the Massachusetts Equal Suffrage Association, to her efforts is due a large part of the enthusiasm for equal suffrage among trade organizations of both men and women.

'NOT A CANDIDATE,' SAYS W. J. BRYAN

William Jennings Bryan, who arrived from the West this morning and went to the City Club, said that he was not a candidate for anything and had no expectation of ever being a candidate.

"I might add, however, that I have not pledged myself to any one not to be a candidate and neither do I expect to so pledge myself.

"I am in favor of reciprocity with Canada. I would not outline how many ships ought to be built, but I am not in favor of a large navy such as the Europeans maintain."

Mr. Bryan would not attempt to forecast politics as affecting individual candidates and declined to say if he intended to see President Taft.

ACCUSED BY SHARON WOMAN, IS FREED

NEW YORK, March 7.—Jean J. Shaughnessy, graduate of Columbia and of the Stevens Technical Institute, who is also known as an electrical engineer and inventor, was honorably discharged by Magistrate O'Connell to-day when he was arraigned on a charge of picking the purse of Mrs. Annabel Gill of Sharon, Mass., in a subway train.

There was no evidence and the magistrate severely reprimanded Mrs. Gill. She tried to apologize to Shaughnessy, but he refused to listen to her and left the court room. Mrs. Gill probably will be brought by him against his accuser.

WEIGHING OF MAIL DELAYS DELIVERIES

All mail matter sent out by carriers of the Boston postoffice and district stations is being weighed this week and the figures sent to Washington to aid in the general investigation of the postoffice department. As a result of this new work put on carriers, the delivery of mail all over Boston is delayed from one hour to one hour and a half each trip. Delays may be expected all week. There was much complaint from businessmen. The second morning delivery trip is being abolished in many Boston suburbs.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

ON THE JOB

RAILWAYS GIVE UP THE BATTLE

NEW YORK, March 7.—There will be no appeal from the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission denying the railroads the right to increase their rates. The Eastern railroads decided to-day and at a meeting here decided to cancel the proposed advance so as before the 15th of March. The Western railroads had already submitted.

The commission denied the plea of the Eastern roads for permission to postpone the date of effectiveness of their advanced rates to November 1 next, instead of cancelling them now. At the same time the commission declared that the facts already brought out by the roads on their move for advances in rates would stand on the record available for use, in connection with additional facts in any new proceedings for freight rate changes.

BADGER CONTINUES LONG HEINZE TALK

Walter I. Badger is still talking. He intends to continue talking for several days yet. Mr. Badger is one of Boston's best known lawyers and is counsel for F. Augustus Heinze, the copper man, in his extradition proceedings from several Boston brokers and money lenders, whom he is charged with swindling. Badger defrauded Heinze borrowed $300,000 of A. D. F. Randolph, a Boston broker, who is now in jail for larceny from customers. He says gave Heinze $300,000 worth of stocks and bonds as securities and that Adams sold the stocks, though the name whom Heinze is suing. The case is now being argued before Judge Rockwood Hall. Mr. Badger has talked [illegible] two weeks and is now on his third week. His voice was in fine condition to-day. "Like the cats in Wellesley, who never come back, the backs of dollars and cents never come back," said Mr. Badger.

Gist of the evidence in this case Adams borrowed money from C. P. George, one of the defendants. He says that the money over night George exacted 100 per cent interest. No wonder that George could sleep well.

FIRE DESTROYS HISTORIC HOTEL

BELFAST, Me., March 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Pierce of Cincinnati and their two servants had a narrow escape from death in the fire which destroyed their Summer home, the once famous "Sun Tavern," here early to-day.

Mr. Pierce, who is a writer and lecturer on heating and ventilation, has occupied the house as a Summer residence for several years. Recently he and Mrs. Pierce came on to spend a short time in the historic building, which was more than 100 years old.

Last evening they entertained several friends and before retiring detected the smoke, but a search failed to reveal the cause. At 3 a. m. they were aroused by the crackling of flames and discovered the house ablaze. They barely had time to arouse their servants and make their way, thinly clad, to the street. An alarm was rung in, but the building was in ruins when the firemen arrived.

While Mrs. Pierce stood watching the fire the windows on the front of the building were blown out by the heat, and she was knocked down by the force of the explosion.

LOWELL DEATH HITS KELLHER

The sudden death of Judge Francis Cabot Lowell of the United States Circuit Court may considerably delay the case of William J. ("Big Bill") Kellher, who has been surrounded by his bondsmen and is now in the East Cambridge jail. Kellher was sentenced to serve eighteen years at Charlestown for aiding George W. Caldwell in the looting of the National City Bank of Cambridge.

Judge Lowell only recently heard the arguments on the appeal by the defendant's lawyers. A conference is set for to-day, at which his associates on the bench, Judges Colt and Putnam, were to determine what effect on the case Judge Lowell's demise would have. They heard the arguments with him.

In respect to Judge Lowell's memory the District Court, Circuit Court and Circuit Court of Appeals have all been adjourned indefinitely by Judge Colt, who presides.

The funeral will be held at King's Chapel to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

Why March is the Most Dangerous Month.

March is the most dangerous month of the year because the change of season is more than a change. It is the sick "last only till spring." But if the system is fortified, if the impurities are driven from the blood, if the nerve tissues fed with wholesome nourishment, giving food medicine, there is no danger in the change of season. Dr. John's Medicine is invaluable as a tonic in the spring. It strengthens the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter—builds up the body. It is this quality that has made it so successful in curing colds and all throat and lung troubles. No weakening stimulants, morphine or other dangerous drugs.

BILLY NIXON TO FIGHT KILBANE

Billy Nixon, who has been performing like a champion recently, will spar in or near Cleveland the last part of this month. Johnny Nelson, the manager of Nixon, received an offer from there yesterday and replied favorably to the proposition. It is up to the club now to set the date. One of the Kilbanes will be Nixon's opponent.

Meanwhile, the Cambridge boy will take on all the local matches that are offered him. His next bout essay will be with Tommy Rawson of East Boston at the Quincy Rowing Association's quarters in the Coliseum in Quincy, Thursday night. Nixon must win from Rawson to be an attraction, but the East Boston boy claims that he has Nixon's measure now.

Business Success Through Publicity

No. 72

Overcoming Substitution

Did you ever think how advertising overcomes the evil of substitution? You know that the tendency on the part of the store always is to sell goods which give the most profit rather than those which give the most quality. The only way of meeting this natural and very proper desire of the store for profit is to increase your market that the dealer, though he has a small profit on each individual article, makes a larger gross profit by the rapid turn-over of many sales.

Less than a year ago a maker of biscuits started to advertise a biscuit with a little fellow running across it. Some dealers said they would not stock up with it. It happened that the salesman of this maker of biscuits was in a store trying to sell the goods to an obdurate dealer, who said that he was perfectly satisfied with the lines that he already had. While the salesman was talking to the dealer a little girl came in and said:

"Mother sent me for the crackers with the baby on them, and she says if you send her any more of the other kind she will trade elsewhere."

The dealer looked sheepish and turned to the cracker salesman and said, "Well, I guess I'll have to have some of those. You can take my order," and he put them in stock.

Now, he had been sending other crackers, but the wide newspaper advertising of the cracker in question forced the dealer to supply the demand for them. In fact, the dealer naturally can sell that for which there is a demand, and the best way to create a demand is by newspaper advertising.

First, get a good trade mark, then tell people about the goods, how they can recognize them and why they should buy them, and your market will increase and the evil of substitution, against which there has been such a great outcry, will be minimized, because you will be giving the dealer goods for which there is a demand and in which, therefore, there is a profit.

For any food product, for any kind of wearing apparel, for all sorts of articles for individuals, as well as quantity consumption, there is nothing so effective as the right kind of newspaper advertising. It is the kind of advertising that reaches the dealer, the jobber and the consumer. It's the kind that goes into the household or the office and presents the plea for your goods when everything else is barred at the door.

The New England field is covered by the Boston American in the most intensive way. Advertising in its columns is like intensive farming of agricultural products. It's intensive farming for a market. The Boston American reaches nearly 400,000 readers in a way that no other medium can. If you would like to know more about it, address Trade Aid Department, Boston American.

TRAVIS PUTS UP GREAT GOLF GAME

CHARLESTON, S. C., March 7.—The entrance for the seventh annual Spring golf tournament on an extra 72-hole handicap basis had fair to reach it up to 250. The New England delegation entered in large numbers, but what is to be expected in the way of play may be gained from the eighty-odd record which Walter Travis turned in. This record on the number two course equals the record held by Percy Boomer and Alex Ross. Going out in thirty-seven Travis came back in thirty-one. Each way out ..... 3 4 4 4 5 4 5 3 3—37

YOUNG JASPER AND GALLANT IN A DRAW

WOBURN, March 7.—Before a crowd of one at the Woburn A. A. Young Jasper of Boston and Johnny Gallant of Chelsea fought a ten-round draw as the main bout of the boxing meet. Mickey Brown of Malden and Barney Reilly of South Boston, in the semi-final, went six rounds to a draw, as did Young Kenney of Wakefield and Young McHugh of Woburn. Young Weber of Woburn knocked out Young Malta of Everett in the second round of the curtain-raiser.

BEDELL BEATS KEYES.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Joe Bedell of Brooklyn outfought Harry Keyes of this city in ten fast rounds at the Postman A. C. The bout was a slugging match from the start, with the Brooklyn boxer having all the better of the infighting. Keyes was wild and missed many right-hand swings, while Bedell measured his punches in good style.

BROWN DEFIES WHOLE WORLD

BY TAD.

"Dumb Dan" Morgan, manager of "Knockout" Brown, rolled up on the pinole to tell us a few things.

"I see that one-round Hogan is kicking because I want him to do his ring aside," chirped Daniel. "Well, I gave him his choice when he came out here first, and let him come in a bit heavier than Brown. Now, to show you how tight Brown is I'll bet him do 130 ringside if Hogan does 133.

"That Ditchburn of mine is best at 130, so why should I fight big fellows who will come into the ring at 147 or 150?

"Silent, Charlie Harvey has been boiling out from a mighty low, but I offered to put $1,000 the other night to Soul a match for a Xmas side bet with the United and confirmed and the result was that we didn't get any money.

"Now, listen, continued Dan. "I have backing up to $2,000 that Brown can beat any one in the world at 133 pounds, and I won't bet on one. I don't care whether it's Tim Jones or Abe Attell. Welgast can have the bet if he wants and I'd be tickled to death to get him.

"How was it Brown missed that other game when he had Welgast going? Well, when he came back to the corner I asked him why he hadn't rushed in and put the fight to the jaw and he told me that he thought Welgast was boxing because he had hit him on the top of the head and didn't think he was as groggy as we appeared to be.

"Brown wasn't right that night, either, but we got away with it. I won't let the fight for about five weeks now. I want to rest him up again and then when he does start you'll see him at his best.

"He won't allow any weight to the middle and he won't lose a bit of speed."

Drop around, slicker, Mr. Morgan; your time is up," said the operator.

POWER BOAT RACE NEW YORK TO HALIFAX

HALIFAX, N. S., March 7.—Action taken by the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron of Halifax practically assures the completion of arrangements for a power boat race from New York to Halifax, which has been under consideration for some time.

In response to a communication from the Brooklyn Yacht Club the local yachtsmen have already commenced to outline plans for the finish of the race here and the reception of the contestors.

No date has yet been set for the contest, but local fellows say that July or August suggested the last week in July or the first week in August as the most desirable at this end.

$10,000 WAGERED ON A CUTTER RACE

LOS ANGELES, March 7.—The annual cutter race between the cruiser of United States cruiser South Dakota and California was won at San Pedro by the South Dakota boat by a margin of nearly seven minutes. There were twelve oarsmen to each boat and the course was three miles. Wagers on the race amounted to nearly $10,000.

BURBANK HANDILY THROWS O'CONNELL

BROCKTON, March 7.—Joseph Burbank of Brockton defeated Frank O'Connell of Baltimore in a wrestling bout at Caputo Hall in straight falls, the first one in 7m. 45s. and the second in 6m. 30s. Burbank weighed ten pounds more than his opponent and was the aggressor from the start.

ROSKIN FIGHTS STRONG FINISH

NEW BEDFORD, March 7.—Before fully 1,000 fight fans, members of the New Bedford Athletic Club, the best between Chicko Roskin of this city and Kid Murphy of New York was declared a draw at the finish of the twelfth round.

During the early stages of the game the New Yorker had the best boy in bad, but his desire to make the fight last as long as possible and give the fans a run for their money caused him to lengthen the fight to the limit. During the final round the local boy came back strong and his blows inflicted considerable damage. Murphy was holding to the ropes when the bell rang, saving him a knockout.

The best fight of the evening was a preliminary between Billy Farrow of Fall River and Haywood Briggs of Brockton for most rounds. Briggs, a colored fighter, got the worst of the go and at the finish saved himself a knockout by clinching. Tom Mullaney of Quincy in his fight with John Coes of South Boston was forced to surrender in the fourth round. The bout was scheduled for eight rounds, but Mullaney signified his wish in the fourth and the fight was ended.

MAT CHAMPIONS TO MEET AT COLUMBIA

Manager Harry N. Farren of the Columbia announces an international championship wrestling match for Wednesday night, when Bob Berry, holder of the Empire middleweight championship belt, meets Sam Anderson, claimant of the American title. Berry won the championship tournament in 1910, and came here for the express purpose of meeting Anderson, who won the middleweight championship belt at the London tournament in 1910, and has defended his title against all comers since that time. Berry is a clever cut young man, and is anxious to annex the American title, which will make him the undisputed champion of the world.

CANADIAN TEAMS TO PLAY $2,000 MATCH

The Wanderers of Montreal, who many years held the Stanley cup and who this Winter only lost by a small margin to Ottawa, and the Moncton team, champions of the Maritime provinces and also challengers for the Stanley cup, will battle in two games at the Arena, March 22 and 25.

The teams compete for a purse of $2,000, to be divided, 60 per cent. to winner and 40 per cent. to the loser, the total scores of the two games deciding the competition.

BOXING NEWS AND GOSSIP

Bat Benson, the Western boxer, who has been in Australia since he had several successful bouts, is now in London, but will sail for this country next month. He will try to get the winner of Johnny Clabby and Harry Lewis.

Hugo Kelley, who claims the middleweight championship, will make his debut in the East to-night when he meets Jim Smith in a ten-round bout at New York. Kelley has been matched to meet Frank Klaus, the Pittsburg fighter, Mar. 22.

Packey McFarland will be in New York to-morrow to start training for his bout with Owen Moran that will take place March 16. He will go to his old training place in Westchester, where he trained for Jack Goodman.

ALL-STAR BOUTS AT ARMORY A. A.

The all-star intercity program arranged for the Armory A. A. members to-night gives every promise of producing some of the best boxing witnessed in some time. With stars like Eddie Murphy, Joe Hirst, Tommy O'Keefe, George Alger, Albert Belmont and Jimmy Carroll and a preliminary bout of six rounds between Peck Lefavour and Young McDonough, every promise seems ate to be lived up to.

All the principals have informed the club management that they are in the best of physical condition.

The preliminaries have good records. Hirst, the Philadelphia boxer, who faces Eddie Murphy, the South Boston favorite, holds wins over Young Erne, Johnny Williams and Frankie Madeo, and Ray Brausse to an eight-round draw and only last Wednesday night knocked out one of New York's best lightweights, Jack Smith.

Tommy O'Keefe, who meets George Alger, is well known to Boston fans. Jimmy Carroll, who meets Belmont, is one of the best boys in the ring to-day. He is accustomed to boxing over the long route, but he has trained to accustom himself for a fast ten-round contest.

The bout that is attracting much attention is the Lefavour-McDonough, six-round opener. When these boys met several weeks ago a sensational contest resulted.

The bout that was scheduled between Hugo Kelly, the Chicago middleweight, and Leo Houck, for March 15, has been called off and an "all star" show will be held March 16, the regular night. Kelly is laid up with an attack of grip and as he is out for the middleweight championship he will take no chances in the ring with a tough boy.

WOLGAST WILL MEET M'FARLAND

CHICAGO, March 7.—"Ad" Wolgast, who to-day is on his way to Los Angeles, where he will box George Memsic twenty rounds March 17, enlivened the evening during his stop over in this city by arranging one more match with Packey McFarland. "Ad" and his manager, Tom Jones, met McFarland's representative, Emil Thiery, and an agreement was reached for a battle between the champion and Packey to be fought before the Fairmount Athletic Club of New York late in April. The boys will scale in at 135 pounds at 7 o'clock. Wolgast will meet Jack White next month in Milwaukee.

ELEONORA SEARS HELPS WIN MATCH

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 7.—Eleonora Sears, one of Boston's best woman tennis players, playing with R. E. Racey of Jensen, Fla., had a very narrow escape from defeat in the first round of the mixed doubles tennis tournament being played here this week.

Miss Gurnee Munn of Washington and Q. A. Shaw McKeen of Prides Crossing won the first set, and looked to be in a fair way to win the second, but Miss Sears and her partner got together and pulled the match out of the fire. The score was 4—6, 7—5, 6—3.

Mrs. J. C. Thaw of Pittsburg and Lawrence Waterbury of New York defeated Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., and David Gray of Boston, 6—4, 6—8, 6—2.

HOCKEY TEAM NOTES

Rhodes M. T. S. annexed the championship of Cambridge with its hockey team and was runner-up in the Interscholastic League. The team defeated the Cambridge Latin seven by the score of 8 to 0 for the city title. Captain Pitts, as usual, was the mainstay for his team 5-2 scoring three of the goals. Hill and Kinsley scored the others.

Robert Baldwin has been chosen captain of the Newton High hockey team for next season. This was his first season on the ice and he made quite a good, and it is expected that he will be one of the school stars next season. He will displace Charley Poole, who will go to Andover.

The Melrose High team scored seventy-four goals to its opponents in the games played this season. Its record includes seven consecutive victories in which games it scored 46 goals against the opponents' 0. Captain Lewis Goodhue, Melrose has the individual record of points in scoring for a single game.

The teams that took a full out of the Arlington High scene were the Alumni, winning by 6 to 1, Newton High, 4 to 2; Melrose High, 7 to 0, and Rindge M. T. S., 3 to 0. In the Arlington defeated Wellesley High, Somerville High, English High, Cambridge Latin, Brookline High, and many other fast school teams.

The Medford High hockey team won its fifth consecutive Interscholastic League title by defeating the Stone School team, 12 to 0. Medford has played all its league games and did not meet defeat, winning the championship and also the second leg on a cup that was donated four years ago by Milton High in the days on the cup.

The Arlington seven completed its schedule with ten games won and four games lost. This was the second time in ten years that the school has had the hockey title, but nevertheless it is satisfied with its showing, as there was but little material at the beginning of the season.

FAST CANADIAN TEAM AT ARENA

The Chatham hockey team that plays at the Boston Arena on Wednesday night is on the way to the Hub, and will arrive here to-morrow morning in order to get a tryout on the indoor rink, as they want to defeat the crack Boston Hockey Club, the team that already numbers three Canadian victims in terrific clashes on the ice.

There is much local interest in the visit of the Chatham team here, as many Americans know of the Dominion city noted for its municipal developments. Clarence Blakely of Boston, one of the leading sportsmen, has given much of his individual attention in bringing the Canadian team here. He has seen the team play and also the local ice teams, and is confident that the classy Boston team is slated for a defeat.

According to the record made by the Chatham team this year, it normally appears dangerous. Teams representing Windsor, Stratford, London and other Western Canadian cities, have been forced to bow to the prowess of the Chatham boys in hockey tests.

In the last standing announced by the secretary of the National Billiard League it is seen that St. Louis is even further the lead than ever. Pittsburg, who is second place, has played many less games than St. Louis, but has surely got to get going soon in order to capture the pennant.

Chicago will be in Boston next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and are seeding for Harris and James Shea. The games will be pocked at the Imperial.

The last Eastern teams to close their Western tour were the Brooklyn and New York. The former found the knights of the green cloth in the West were much drier per flind in the east here in three-cushion. Brooklyn only captured three games out of seventeen on the week and turned home with only two scraps dangling to their belt out of the dozen matches it will be remembered that Boston had to be satisfied with one of the games to its credit out of the schedule. Philadelphia is now east and last Eastern team to travel through the West.

"Lew Shaw is surely in a class by himself as an entertainer and a wizard in executing fancy shots," was the remark made by a dyed-in-the-wool billiard fan instead after seeing him perform at Vatter's Studio. "Shaw's performance with that line of trick stars of the world have stated the shoulder rolled years ago that like him can only come to 'Lew' in the fancy the exercise. Lew is playing a tour of New England visiting all of the prominent towns and towns before returning to New York.

George Moore, holder of the record high run of fifteen at three-cushions, is daily expecting in New York for his match with John Daly, the champion at that style of game, which is expected to take place in New York the last week of this month.

Alfredo de Oro is working overtime for his exemplonship match for the pool title with Tom Hueston. These two players are very much and the outcome of the match will be quite a sea, slice of money that will be wagered.

"OLD DOC" GREEN GIVES OUT SOME RED SOX POINTERS

"DOC" GREEN.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 7.—"Old Doc" Green, the Red Sox trainer, is the busiest man in the whole State and he is happy. He is full of hope for the Boston boys and in an interview today said:

"The boys are in fine condition physically and need but little work to round them out in tip-top shape for the long season's grind.

"I have conditioned a good many athletes in my day, but I never saw a finer lot of young fellows than the lied Sox players this year.

"There isn't a weak man physically on the team. They are all clean-cut and hard workers, and I'll miss my guess if Donovan and his men fail to win the 2ied rag.

"I like ieddoubo better than Hot Springs in many ways, but I must say at this time that I think it a better place to train than the Springs. The place has no flies or Gleadcuttings and so has every other place.

"Speaker is in fine condition. He always rakes good care of himself in the Winter and when he comes to me for a rub down after the condition of the men at all times and when I see one of the boys going stale or anything else the matter with him, I take him in hand and bring him back to health.

"Keeping the pitchers' arms in shape is a difficult matter. If the pitchers' arms get bad why it's all off with any ball team.

Collins have taken good care of themselves and can hardly wait for the first league game.

"Wood is tough as a pine knot and has a cast-iron whip. He never gets tired and shoots 'em over as fast as any pitcher in the league.

"Collins is a college boy and is anxious to be a star fielder and consequently does not take any chances of undermining his physical or mental foundation.

"Maiden has taken off twenty pounds since the close of the season and looks fine and should make a good showing before the year.

"Carrigan and Kellow show up fine and are in far better shape physically than when they reported last year.

"Hall, Gardner and Purtell look good and have taken good care of themselves. Hardier is in lively and full of spirit as a two-year-old. Of course Cap Wagner is in fine shape.

He always is. He never cuts up any capers and eats and sleeps regularly. Which has done more to keep him in his fine physical condition than anything else.

"Of the youngsters, Javerio, Rievert and Perry take my eye. They are sturdy, well-built boys, and in the pink of condition.

"It isn't any cinch looking after forty or fifty baseball players in Spring training and during the season. It keeps a fellow slightly busy.

"If one of the boys gets a cinder in his eye he comes to me for aid. I look after the condition of the men at all times and when I see one of the boys going stale or anything else the matter with him, I take him in hand and bring him back to health.

"Keeping the pitchers' arms in shape is a difficult matter. If the pitchers' arms get bad why it's all off with any ball team."

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

At an enthusiastic meeting of the West End baseball club of Dorchester, which was elected captain and plans were formulated for the season, it was decided to play independent and the team instead of entering into any league. Many of last year's men, including the Clinton Park two-mile and a half relay team, will be seen on the 300 team. Captain Joseph Barney, who created such a sensation last season by his clever work with the Boston and New England League scouts, Harold Sexton, Roland Wright, Edward Sise, James Hanley, Joseph Sullen, Francis Yates, Adrian Cote, James Desmond, James Mahoney and John Powers. Area's complete and the outcome of the meeting will be forwarded from the Rivers Roberts of Boston, the Medford team is a strong 16, Agassiz and the team of South Boston.

It looks as though Brockton boys and those from nearby towns attending Brown University would run baseball on its ear at the up-river school. Arthur Stagg, who is some pitcher and pitcher, is expected to be back in the box for the Brown team this year, while Walter Hall, two years out captain of the local high school team and later catcher at the Providence college, will be behind the bat. Kelly looks like a sure thing at third base, Hanson of Weymouth, who played short on the 1910 team last year, will go back to that position and his brother, Carl Hall, home and first base. Georgo Hill and George Crowther look good for positions, and Tom Dolan of Bridgewater, a former star Brockwater High player, has an excellent chance to make the team.

Captain Martin T. Twiss of the Brockton High baseball team has issued a call for candidates for the team for the coming week and a schedule of games between now and the 4th will answer the summons. Every position on the team is open to competition and the few veterans will have to hustle for their places if they hope to get them this season. There are but five regulars out for the team, Joseph Kelley, Joseph Sullivan, Joseph Gilfoyle, Captain Twiss will be in left garlet, Fred Twiss will catch the delivery of his brother, Joseph Gilfoyle will do duty and Pete Mc-Glinchey, if he recovers from his recent injury will be at the initial sack.

In appreciation of his excellent work as head baseball coach of the Brockton High School baseball team for the past two seasons, the athletic committee of the school has presented Dr. Mc-Cabe of North Easton for his season. Dr. McCabe has resigned after a few years from the school ranks and his appointment shows the management to be most popular with the players of the team on the diamond. His first year under Captain Elmer Regan and Lieutenant Cup a to William Roland, the teams have stood up well in the ranks of schoolboy baseball.

The South Hanson A. A. will have a strong team on the diamond again this season. Last season this nine won forty-out of seventeen, not losing a game after July 4. They defeated the Manchester Centre, Revere, Bryant Rock, Roxbury and many other fast semi-professional teams. Manager Hamblen, who played many games will be played at home, but they would like to arrange games for every Saturday and Sunday away from home. # Desperate Desmond

WE HAVE DESMOND A PRISONER IN THIS TRUNK. HIS WIFE IS INJECTED DESMOND CURSE!
WE ARE GOING ALONG NICELY IN THIS FLOOD
LOOKS LIKE AN ARMY RESCUE WAGON AHEAD WE WILL JOIN IT!
HOW NICELY WE FLOATED IN. NOW WE WILL LOOT DESMOND THIS TRUNK AUTHORITIES
THEY ARE IN!
VIVE APACHE!
VIVE APACHE WE HAVE THE GOLD AND ALL!
LOOKS LIKE A NIGHT IN!
HELLO MARCEL! YOU'LL HAVE TO BE REWARDED
DESMOND
NOW CLAUDE YOU WILL DIE ON THE GUILLOTINE
DEFY YOU VILLAIN!
YOU CUR!

Desperate Desmond is inside that trunk on his way to the police station. Claude, Rosamond and the gendarme are sitting on the lid so the scoundrel cannot escape. The trunk, as you see, is floating on the raging waters of the flood which has not yet subsided. Those Paris floods are the real thing when once they get started.

Suddenly two hands reach up from the depths, one at each end of the trunk. Wonder what's doing. Perhaps it's some avenging spirit from the nether regions come to drag Desperate Desmond to his doom. That would be almost too good to be true, wouldn't it? Well, don't worry. The chances are it isn't true.

Splitsie woman's set steels to read the trunk into an express wagon. Supernatural beings usually pull off something more spectacular than that, until, you never can tell. The Prince of Darkness is nothing if not up-to-date. He doesn't like to attract attention by using too much of that brimstone and blue fire stuff.

Apaches. When they saw the gendarme guarding that trunk, they thought must be full of coin or something really valuable, so they laid a plot to swipe it. Thanks to the bonehcaddedness of that French cop, they have no trouble at all in getting away with it.

Against the disappointment of the apaches when they open the trunk, and find nothing in it but Desperate Desmond! At first they are so angry they want to kill him, but he persuades them that there's no nourishment in doing that and offers them untold wealth if they will do his bidding. Of course he never intends to pay them.

At dead of night, desmond drags Claude and Rosamond to the guillotine. He intends to execute Claude in the presence of his lady love, and then if the girl refuses to marry him he swears she shall have her lover's taste. But we're not going to stand too any such stuff as that. Wait for to-morrow's pictures.

Mists

O'ER the hills the Winter sun
Leaves a trail of mist,
Faintly orange where day's done,
Lying sunset-kissed.

Now, below, the valley's hues
Melt and change alway
From a dream of vaporish blues
To a tender gray.

Deep, Intenser burns the West.
Flame the quiet skies,
For an instant earth's wide breast
Many-colored lies.

Lastly, all the cloud fires die,
Spreads the vapor's power,
Westward fades the vacant sky,
Comes earth's mystic hour.

The Children's Court

By ANNA LOUISE STRONG,
In The Journal of Education.

This wise judge sits in his stately chair,
Robed in a gown of black;
And the big cops hurry the children there,
And then they hurry them back.
They answer their names' stern call;
It's but peddled some cherry gum,
And that boy played baseball.

Or down to the narrow canyon street
There ventured a minimum of May;
And the children's hearts and children's feet
Kept time with the rhythm of play;
And young, young life, with a joyous bound,
Arose at the world-old call;
So this boy threw stones at a stone around,
And that boy played baseball.

The wise judge sits in his stately chair,
Robed in a gown of black;
He big cops hurry the children there,
And keep they hurry them back.
Each who is judged in the court to-day,
As the words of sentence fall,
Can tell that made it a crime to play
Or the boy who played baseball

A Thrilling Story of the Highbinders of San Francisco

The Shadow of Quong Lung

Mystery of the Orient Transplanted to America :: By Dr. C. W. Doyle

Copyright by C. W. Doyle

CHAPTER IX.—(Continued)

WITH a deft movement, Wau Shun, who had the advantage of two eyes—though they looked in different directions, and were hard to meet—threw Sam Lee's hand up and snatched the pistol from him.

"Twere easy to slay thee now, Sam Lee; and 'twere profitable, too—if only Quong Lung were out of the way."

Ay, if Quong Lung were only out of the way; but Quong Lung lives, and waxes fat—and Wau Shun is his slave!"

The Murder in the Alley

No more was said. They turned into a narrow alley near the top of Jackson street. Wau Shun walking in the rear. As soon as they had entered the shadow produced by the narrowness of the lane and by its angle to the lighted main street, there was a sharp report, and Sam Lee fell on his face, and coughed like one who is stricken through the lungs.

The swarms that inhabit Chinatown began to boom. In a few minutes the alley was crowded with curious coolies jabbering excitedly, and in the fifth or sixth row of those who stood round Sam Lee was Wau Shun, watching the blood that welled from the mouth of the dying man and prevented speech.

After Wau Shun had seen the corpse of his brother highbinder laid out on a slab at the morgue he treated himself to a couple of jorums of "hot Scotch" and sought his den in Chin Cook alley.

Lighting a dim candle he proceeded to barricade himself, and to conceal his light by means of a coverlet that was held in its place, on his side of the door, by iron bars that crossed and recrossed each other.

When all was snug he drew from an inner pocket the roll of papers given to him by Lee Toy, which set forth the names of the several highbinders who belonged to his tong, the various loppings accomplished by their "hatchets," and, in a special supplement, the instigation to certain notorious crimes by their master mind, Quong Lung.

Lighting a brazier, he tore out his own record from the writings and committed it to the flames. But that which related to Quong Lung he placed in a receptacle cunningly concealed in the threshold of the door.

Then, extinguishing his light, he sallied forth with the rest of Lee Toy's confessions in his pocket, to speak with Quong Lung, who had awaited him these many hours with patience—and wrath.

CHAPTER X.
The Lesser Discipline

THE dawn of Christmas Day was rosy when Wau Shun reached Quong Lung's store. The bells throughout the city of San Francisco were once more frantically announcing the birth of the Babe of Bethlehem, as Wau Shun gave the signal of "The Brethren" on Quong Lung's electric bell. It was answered by a deep voice that came through a speaking tube, the end of which was so cleverly hidden that none but the initiated could find it:

"Peace attend thy feet! What brother needs succor?"

"Thy servant, Wau Shun."

"Enter, Wau Shun," and the door was opened by some mechanical contrivance, and closed, as soon as Wau Shun had crossed the threshold, with a snap suggestive of a steel trap. Pressing a concealed button, Wau Shun lit an incandescent lamp that showed him how to avoid the thread, the breaking of which would have precipitated a hund ed-weight of iron on the head of an intruder. At the end of the passage thus illuminated was a door, to which he applied his passkey, and entered an apartment that was a replica of its occupant, in whom East and West were met. The room was decorated and furnished in accordance with the tastes of a Chinese gentleman of high culture, but the illumination was supplied by electricity, and a long-distance telephone, of the latest pattern, stood at the elbow of the stout, spectacled Chinese merchant, who sat on a great ebony chair, gravely smoking a cigar.

He was Quong Lung.

"Thou hast done well, Wau Shun," he began, "and deservest well—but dry longsome cannot speak."

Pouring on some whiskey for himself, he pushed the bottle across to Wau Shun, who had now seated himself on the other side of the table.

"Thy servant is enriched by thy approbation, Most Powerful," replied Wau Shun, draining his glass after Quong Lung had done likewise.

"Thou hast, doubtless, the packet in thy pocket?"

"Here it is, Most Powerful," and at the proof of it, lest death come to the bad drunk.

"Now, nay, All-Seeing; the packet is suddenly!"

The next moment the horror-stricken highbinder was writhing under the spell of an electric current, strong enough to prevent him from relaxing his hold on the packet, deliberately.

The other turned towards him with arms of his chair, which he had grasped unawares, but he tried to spring to his feet.

After Quong Lung had disarmed his attack the attention of Quong Lung, who clutched the ash from his cigar, and days hence, and at the same hour, will went on:

"And thou wast seen by two the other writing of Lee Toy? Two of to our brethren in the crowd that collected around the corpse of Sam Lee? Two of the brethren are at once on the street and will see to its punctuality. Drink once more, Wau Shun; thou hast need. He, he, he?

Lysander John's Dream

He Has a Vision of the Great Day When Woman Shall Come Into Her Own

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

EVERY wife should encourage her husband to talk freely at home. These talks serve as a safety valve for him, and, as his wife never hears what he says, what he says doesn't hurt her.

Lysander John Appleton spends some time in this way—talking with his wife, he thinks, but finding later, by her silence, that he has been talking to himself. His latest soliloquy concerned the changes the years will bring to New York.

"The statues in the parks and on street corners to-day," he said, "are of men, but in that great future, when woman has come into her own, the hobble skirt, the straight front, the overgrown muff and hat, and the low-necked gown, will be immortalized in bronze, granite and marble.

Statues of the Great

"I have in mind a heroic figure of a woman dressed in the fashion of to-day, with her right arm upheld, as if in the act of throwing a cannon ball. On the base will appear this inscription: 'Pearl Marie Littleton, when she threw the first cannon ball in the war with men in 1912.'

"There will be tablets on various corners around town with inscriptions like this: 'This spot marks the first charge of the Hobble Brigade, in which battle 2,000 men went down with hairpins in their breasts.'

"Holidays in that glorious time will be known as Marietta Moore Birthday (Marietta being a victorious general), or flags will be half-masted because of the anniversary of the day some woman fell.

Still No Response

"It is too bad," he mused, "that the fashions in women's dress change; it spoils the heroine business. How are you women going to reconcile yourselves to doing homage to a woman in bronze in a dress out of style? You will feel as if you had been applauding pictures in an old-fashion book, won't you, Mrs. Appleton?"

No response.

"Won't you, Daisey Mayme?" Still no response, and Lysander John cast a wistful look of inquiry at his son, and then at his dog.

Still no response.

Then he went wearily to bed.

Cousin Billy's Friend--A Tragedy

WHEN Georgia came into the room she found Amy stretched on the couch in an attitude of complete dejection.

"Good gracious! What's the matter?" asked the caller. "I thought you were receiving to-day. Why didn't the maid tell me you were ill?"

"I'm not ill, Georgia, and I heartily wish I weren't in," came Amy's despondent voice from the depths of the sofa pillows.

"Well, if you don't wish to see me, of course——"

"Oh, I'm always glad to see you," Amy raised herself on her elbow and then sank back onto the couch with an exaggerated air of weakness.

"I'm only wilted, that's all. I'm so completely covered with chagrin that I can't rise."

With that she rose and said dramatically: "If some kind fate had taken me on to-day I would not have been bothered with a complete idiot of myself."

"I suppose you know what you are talking about," remarked Georgia, "but you leave me in the dark."

"Wait till you hear the story and then you will come to wonder at my present abject condition.

Cousin Billy's Friend

"About ten days ago," related Amy, "I received a letter from my cousin, Billy Horton, telling me that a friend of his, a Mr. Gilmore, was in Boston studying law, and he asked me to be nice to him. 'He's going along on his own account,' Billy wrote, 'for his father hasn't any sympathy with his legal ambitions. But he's sure to make good, for he's a fine, bright fellow.' Now, as Billy's fault is his hyperabundance of good nature, and you're the one to do it, Amy.'

"Of course, that flattered me, and I determined to become young Gilmore's special guide, philosopher and friend. I sent him a letter, telling him that I was at home Fridays, afternoon and evening, and asked him to call very soon as I considered any close friend of Cousin Billy's a friend of mine.

"Surely that was very nice," commented Georgia.

"Yes, I was trying to be nice to him," sighed Amy. "Well, he came this afternoon. When we had spoken of Cousin Billy and I had asked him how he liked Boston there came a pause that I knew could only be filled with tea, so I told our new maid, Helga, to bring some at once.

"Do you take cream and sugar?' I inquired.

"'No, I prefer it straight,' he said so jauntily that for a happy moment I congratulated myself that I had succeeded in putting him at ease. He took one swallow from the cup I gave him and then, to his horror and mine, it crashed to the floor.

"While he choked and sputtered I suddenly became conscious of a horrible burning sensation on my lips, to which I had just lifted my cup when the crash came.

"'It's ginger!' I cried.

"'Yes,' he answered with tears in his eyes.

A Hot Ginger Brew

"At that moment Helga reappeared and announced calmly that she thought she had brought in the wrong teapot. Then I knew I had given poor Mr. Gilmore some of my grandmother's hot ginger brew which she occasionally takes in small but concentrated doses for her cold.

"I don't know which was the more embarrassed, he or I, while Helga picked up the fragments of the cup and mopped the floor. I tried to explain laughingly how the ginger happened to be substituted for the tea, but evidently the humor of the situation did not strike him, for he only said, very solemnly, 'I'm extremely sorry about the cup.'

"I was gaily assuring him that one cup more or less didn't in the least matter, when to my astonishment and dismay Helga rose from the floor and said, 'Miss Amy, you make a big mistake. Your madder have told me to put the cups cool very much, she say I must be very careful, I now tell you I have not break this cup.' Then she sailed from the room with a righteous air.

"'What did you do?'

"I said with a weak effort at lightness, that I'd call and then I laughed, but there was no response to my merriment. My caller sat still and silent, and I could think of nothing in the world to say.

"At last in desperation I asked him if he noticed the odor of gasoline in the room.

"'It seems to me very strong to here,' I said. 'My mother will insist in cleaning the curtains with the stuff, but I detest it.'

"He rose with a stiff new dignity and said: 'I'm afraid it's my necktie that offends you. I cleaned it with gasoline this morning. Good-bye.'

"I was so overcome that I could only mumble, 'Good-bye' in my turn. Then he walked out of the room, leaving me in the midst of disgrace in which you found me a few minutes ago."

"There's only one consolation about that tragic tale," said Georgia. "He's evidently the kind of serious young man who'll make his way without needing much help from anybody."

"Maybe that's so," returned Amy; "but I wanted to be nice to him and I know he can never be induced to come back here again. And what's more, I never want him to come back."

Table Hints

THE pelife nuts from South America, which are comparatively new at the fancy fruiterers, have something the flavor of the brazil nut, but are more delicate and tender. Shaved over a salad they are good.

Hot toasted crackers buttered, covered with marmalade, and arranged around the outside of a plate with cheese balls heaped in the centre, make a sightly luncheon dish for dessert course. Form cream cheese into balls, and roll the balls in chopped pistachio nuts or mix them with chopped olives. The cheese is delicious if mixed with minced sweet red pepper, minced parsley, or any chopped nut.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STOCKS FIRM IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 7.—Firmness and a general advance, especially among the railroad shares, characterized the opening of the stock market to-day.

Substantial gains were made in all the standard railroads, in the opening prices, Reading was up ¾, Union Pacific ¾, Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, New York Central ¼, Canadian Pacific ¾, St. Paul ¾, Atchison, ¼.

U. S. Steel was up ¾, and Amalgamated copper opened unchanged from last night's close.

The curb market was steady and the opening moderately active.

Americans displayed a firm tone in the London market and gains were recorded. There was a good demand in London for Canadian Pacific.

Cotton opening: March 14.10, May 14.10, July 14.01, August 13.40, October 12.40, December 12.28.

The sentiment seemed to be better here and traders were encouraged by the strong undertone which has prevailed even during depressions in trading. Despite the general expectation that a decision in the Harriman merger suit would be handed down soon, Union and Southern Pacific were both strong. Wall Street argues that the effect of this decision has been discounted no matter which side is favored.

LINDSAY SAYS BIG CROOKS GO TO SENATE

NEW HAVEN, March 11.—Judge Benjamin B. Lindsay of Denver, speaking before Professor Oxley's class in American political conditions, said:

"Our small crooks we send to prison in stripes; our big crooks we often send to the United States Senate."

"While I am not cynical, I would like to inquire why the millionaires are sent to the senate so much by the people. They send out many good men; some of the best men to fight for righteousness. But the biggest crooks I have ever known are men from the universities. They are equipped with great intelligence, and are after the bones which attracted the dog on canal minute the dog saw that they had the bones. In some cases it is a judgeship, in others perhaps it is the United States Senate."

CREW OF BOSTON SCHOONER IN PORT

Word reached the office of the Coastwise Transportation Company, No. 33 India street, that seven men of the seven men of the schooner J. C. Strawbridge had been landed in New York by the steamer Bermudan last in from Bermuda. The schooner young Alex February 23 about 200 miles off Bermuda and was abandoned. The crew was rescued by the Kingdom steamer Dalgrima. The Strawbridge is owned by the Boston Transportation Company. She sailed from Boston January 29 for Rockport, Me., to load ice for Nassau.

HELD IN $500 FOR FEDERAL LARCENY

Edward W. Davis of Wollaston waived examination before U. S. Commissioner Hayes on the charge of stealing Government property, and was held in $500 for the Federal Grand Jury. He is employed as an inspector in the office of the United States naval inspector of engineering materials at No. 6 Beacon street.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THEATRES

It is a crackerjack show at Keith's Theatre this week, headed by Comedians Mary Norman, with her clever, humorous monologue, made the hit of her career. The large audience took to her offering from the start, and didn't want to let her go. The "hat song-stories" pleased immensely.

Yorke and Adams returned after a seven years' absence. They received a royal welcome and offered a new line of clever character comedy. A musical comedy playlet called "College Life," with twenty people in the cast, was most interesting, Ger and Griffin and company, in a condensed version of the play, "Hitting the Line," drew their act neatly and the work is polished.

Hyman Myer, at the piano, with a Dutch comedy make-up, was a comic artist as a pianist, and in addition presented a new song. The piano playing team of Lewis and Gordon Co. were pleased in their songs and dances.

A new idea for this house was presented for the opening number. A talking machine number was offered, with a record by Lerum. The singing accompaniment by the orchestra, succeeded in deceiving many of the audience, who were under the impression that the singer was on the stage. Taken all in all, the bill, as a whole, is one of the best offered this year.

Grand Opera House.

"Caught in Mid-Ocean," a melodrama founded on the sensational Crippen case, that so stirred the people of two continents last summer, opened for a week's run at the Grand Opera House. The play is thrilling in the extreme, the plot following the main incidents of the case, though, of course, very much elaborated for stage purposes. The sinking of the steamship Montrose when the wireless operator discovered the identity of the scheming physician and the little stenographer, the capturing of the latter on board the ship, is realistic, and the capture of the man when the pilot brings aboard the Montrose's pilot boat, the Dorothea, is deserved in the way of sensational melodrama.

Captain G. H. Kendall, former master of the Montrose, on the last summer was actually responsible for the arrest of Dr. Crippen and the girl, and in the play last night's performances at the guest of the management.

Howard Athenaeum.

Strong women took the centre of the stage at the Old Howard yesterday and furnished a large measure of the entertainment that made up the long continuous bill. Charmion, the strong girl, contributed has made her one of the big favorites among the Howard patronage, and the Howard, was again in the midst of friends, Vera de Mirjanoff, the Russian strong wrestler, had a good share of the program which included what she could do. The burlesque attraction was the "Washington Society Girls."

Orpheum Theatre.

A lively week was begun at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday afternoon, when the Monarch Comedy Four unloosened a wide variety of good music that proved popular. Another attraction that will please is Mabel Wayne, who sang fetching songs and was furnished her own piano accompanist. There were a half dozen other attractive features and a new list of motion pictures.

Waldron's Casino.

One of the leaders in the burlesque field is Waldron's Casino, and patrons of Waldron's Casino theatre were given a bully entertainment by Mr. Robinson's "Crusoe Girls" yesterday. The burlesque organization company do the company much to do that was amusing.

Gaiety Theatre.

"The Girl from Sherry's" caught everybody on the funny bone at the Gaiety Theatre yesterday, besides supplying a large measure of musical entertainment. There was an abundance of exceedingly pretty girls in the big company.

Columbia Theatre.

Pat White and his "Gaiety Girls" found a warm welcome at the Columbia Theatre yesterday. There were two spirited burlettas, "Crazy in Society" and "Caught at the Casino," both of which were made attractive by Mr. White's pretty chorus.

Austin & Stone's.

George (Kid) Cranfield, the reformed gambler, continues as the main attraction in the curio hall at Austin & Stone's Museum, where he entertained large crowds yesterday.

Theatre Comique.

The daylight pictures at the Theatre Comique are becoming more popular every day. The bill this week is one of exceptional interest and includes new illustrated songs.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Kenney and Hollis, two Boston boys, were at the top of the new bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. There were several other good features and new motion pictures.

New Palace Theatre.

The Great Burnelli, in an astonishing novelty act, headed the new program at the New Palace Theatre yesterday. This was but one of the many attractive features on the bill.

Scenic Temple.

There is always an engaging program at the Scenic Temple and the new bill yesterday met every requirement of the high standard already set at that theatre.

Hub Theatre.

Few animal acts now in vaudeville excel in entertaining qualities Speaarty's trained bears, which headed the program at the Hub Theatre yesterday. There are other novelties to the bill.

Plays That Remain.

The joys of commuting are so deliciously pictured at the Park Theatre in James Forbes's comedy, "The Commuters," is playing to capacity business.

"The Bonnie Briar Bush" is drawing interest to the Shubert Theatre, where it is telling an interesting newspaper story.

"The Girl of My Dreams" is a new week at the Colonial Theatre last evening. Its music is sparkling.

INSTRUCT AIDES TO "WORLD IN BOSTON"

Tonight over 100 lieutenants and 500 secretaries of the stewards of "The World in Boston," the coming missionary exhibit in Mechanics Building, April 23 to May 24, will receive instructions in the Brunfield Street Methodist Church. Rev. W. E. Gardiner of Wellesley, captain of the stewards, will be present, and will give in detail the duties that are expected of these officers in exploiting the exhibit to the public.

"LOTTERY MAN" A BIG SCREAM

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The laughing successes of the season will have to make room for "The Lottery Man." Many a comedy has been written in which the laugh has been on the author, but those merry folk of the Majestic Theatre last evening had neither time nor inclination for anything but their own amusement, and with the help of Lizzie they got their money's worth and more.

Lizzie! Why, she was the nonchalant ancient dame who lifted the burden from the weary and oppressed as they sat comfortably on the upholstered side of the footlights. Lizzie was a joy to those with heavy hearts and aching souls. Lizzie made "The Lottery Man" a success.

Let Thos. Aibletas, a trio of handsome women, offer a strong act, whose work in the weight lifting line would put to shame many teams of the "strong" sex. They threw their act neatly and the work is polished.

Hyman Myer, at the piano, with a Dutch comedy make-up, was a comic artist as a pianist, and in addition presented a new song. The piano playing team of Lewis and Gordon Co. were pleased in their songs and dances.

A new idea for this house was presented for the opening number. A talking machine number was offered, with a record by Lerum. The singing accompaniment by the orchestra, succeeded in deceiving many of the audience, who were under the impression that the singer was on the stage. Taken all in all, the bill, as a whole, is one of the best offered this year.

Story of the Fun.

To know more about Lizzie it must be explained that Rida Johnson Young's comedy concerns a young man who in one bitter stress of financial rough weather, offered himself as the prize husband in a Lenten lottery. The prize was sold at a dollar each, and the winning number guessed at the beginning. It would have been a jolly lark for the young man if he hadn't become in love with the pretty girl just as the lottery was launched. As it was the whole affair became one of the jolliest farces of the year for those who pay at the gate.

The girl, whose wrong woman won the prize and Lizzie proceeded to collect all that was coming to her on her lucky ticket. Miss Lowell gave Lizzie enough real humor to make the whole play and she received a heap from the outside. She was the last word in the old and disappointed nobility. She was the utter hopelessness of a century rolled into two hours, with no life-line in sight except her ticket and the prize. Would such a woman sacrifice her victory? Not Lizzie.

While the audience laughed itself into spasms over Lizzie, Cyril Scott, as the prize young man, did all there was to be done in such troublous waters. He haunted earnestly for a safe landing, but it was hard digging, in spite of the lovely inspiration supplied by Hertha Bartlett, a sentuous heroine who needed coaxing.

What a sweet experience of this sweet romance if a mere matter had not disclosed that Lizzie acquired the winning ticket dishonestly is hard to determine. There would have been sorrow in one home.

Oh, Shame on Lizzie.

Mr. Scott was mainly enough to deserve a better fate, although the real joy of the performance was in Miss Lowell's Lizzie. Charming, she was on a par with everything with lofty blue trimmings in the Bronx acted as if she were born to her part and interested in the play.

Louis Gardner, however, won every body with her sincerity as the young man's friend. Miss Gardner was a delightful study of middle-aged youth in a way that left a wholesome mark on the evening. Harriet Mackey and Jennie Dickerson did all that was required of them, while Montrose Moses and Mary Leslie Mayo was amusing as a Turkish bath attendant.

Miss Mayo as "Maid" is a love story with laughs that count.

Boston Theatre.

Mlle. Emma Trentini—"the Little Trentini," they called her when she was a member of Oscar Hammerstein's noted Manhattan opera company — captivated completely a critical audience at the Boston Theatre last evening, when she made her first appearance as a star here in "Mlle. Mischief," a light opera by Victor Herbert, with book by Rida Johnson Young. To add more delight to the performance Mr. Herbert himself came over from New York to conduct the orchestra, assurance that all the beauties of the score were revealed with the master's touch. Altogether it was a big night for the Boston.

"Naughty Marietta" is typically tuneful, after Herbert's well-known and popular style. At times it rises to the plane of grand opera, and then there are adroitly interwoven some farcical situations that are screamingly funny. The work is sung throughout with a spirit and skill that comic operas usually lack. As an opera, so high a standard is maintained throughout the piece that it would have been hazardous for ordinary singers. The entire roster of principals of Mr. Hammerstein's company, two of whom, in addition to the charming star, are from the ranks of grand opera, is capable not only of rendering the music perfectly, but of giving to the most impressive arias a touch of fun not found in the ordinary run of light musical offerings.

Mlle. Trentini as Naughty Marietta is the personification of arch mischief. Her soprano is a voice of great flexibility and sweetness. Orville Harrold, the tenor, has a most wonderful range. His upper register is notably clear and resonant. Mme. Maria Duchene, the gifted member of grand opera, was splendid in her one solo allotted to her role.

Mr. Herbert received a veritable ovation when he appeared at the conductor's desk and received, with Mlle. Trentini, at the end of the first act, equal honors both bowing graciously acknowledgments from the gallery.

The story told is a pretty one of a little Italian girl who runs away from home to avoid a distasteful match. The scene is laid in New Orleans in 1840, when buccaneers from the Spanish Main were not uncommon in that half-Spanish, half-French Southern city. The fantastic incidents interpolated through the piece make the story interesting.

Oscar Hammerstein has mounted the production lavishly, and has provided a chorus which can really sing. Mlle. Trentini will do well not to overlook "Naughty Marietta."

Castle Square.

"The End of the Bridge," written by Miss Florence Lincoln, a Radcliffe student, for the prize offered by John Craig, was presented at the Castle Square last night, and was well received by a large audience. Miss Lincoln has used simplicity as a theme and the play is brightened here and there with quaint, subtle humor.

The story deals with a nerve specialist,

FOUR NEW SHOWS COME TO MAKE BOSTON LAUGH

Miss Helen Lowell and Cyril Scott at the Majestic.

MARGARET ANGLIN AT THE TREMONT — EMMA TRENTINI AT THE BOSTON — BILLIE BURKE AT THE HOLLIS

Dr. John Garret, who has as a patient Joan Mannering, the daughter of a friend to whom he is under personal obligations. Winsome Wimple and how they all knowing wish of her father that she be married. Billie Burke is the original Isobel. Garret marry her. Garret is on the eve of attaining his ambition. He has been offered a professorship in a leading German university, where he will have the opportunity to devote his time to study and research. After some deliberation he gives up his opportunity and marries Joan, saving her life and mind.

After their marriage Joan discovers Garret's sacrifice and determines to set him free by divorce. When she ponders over parting with her husband she discovers that she loves him, and he realizes that he is in love with his wife. The play ends with the word that love is better than ambition.

One of the best character parts was the child, Solomon Peter. Miss Henriette McDaniel took the part, and with her serious face and refreshing determination to get all acting possible out of her part heaped the play to success.

John Craig, as usual, played his part charmingly, and won the hearts of many a hard work and thoughtful study. Miss Young as Joan Mannering was sincere, and much in sympathy with her role. Mr. Hassell, as Fella Marcelle, was very good, especially in his scenes with Peter.

Hollis Street.

Rain has been produced scientifically. Charming Billie Burke produces sunshine naturally. Ina Souez, the soprano, and Pasquale Amato, the baritone, of the Boston Opera House, are the principals in the new bill at the Hollis Street Theatre, where the dainty actress appeared in a double bill.

To start with there was a little curtain raiser called "The Philosopher in the Apple Orchard," in which Miss Hurst and Lumsden Hare had a fascinating dialogue. He was the philosopher. She was a girl who put a problem before him—a problem that showed she loved him to everybody, but the philosopher. Otherwise, probably, he wouldn't have been a philosopher. So he figured out she ought to marry the other fellow and probably she did.

Then came "Suzanne," a three-act comedy, the scene laid in Brussels. There was a breath of beer and Leerlin ways all through the comedy and some very frank conversation, but winsome Billie Burke charmed all the trouble away and brought everything to a happy ending. For instance, her mother and father were in a state always quarreling. Suzanne made peace. She was to marry a young man who should have been married a needle-work shop. She sent him back to the girl.

Albert Delphere, highly educated, from Paris, in Brussels, working for her father, is too high-minded for this environment. Suzanne makes him come down off his high horse and be one of them. Then she marries him. Some capital characters appear in the comedy, Harry Harwood, George W. Anson and Rose Rand.

MISS ANGLIN IN A COMEDY

Miss Margaret Anglin in "Green Stockings," at the Tremont, scored a pronounced success in her first Boston appearance as a comedienne. Heretofore known as an emotional actress, Miss Anglin has found a vehicle in "Green Stockings" with which she reveals new talent sure to bring her additional honors.

The play is a wholesome farce, based on an old English custom, and a bachelor maiden's desire to evade the good natured writings of that custom for marriage or betrothal of her younger sisters when she herself is without a suitor. Tired of wearing "green stockings," as the custom decrees, the bachelor maiden invents a suitor, who unexpectedly appears in person through the accidental posting of a letter.

This youthful lover, Colonel J. N. Smith, turns out to be a colonial colonel in the British army. His curiosity being aroused by the receipt of the letter, which Celia Faraday (Miss Anglin) thought she had burned after it had accomplished its purpose of fooling her joking relatives—is made on the bachelor maiden and then the fun starts.

If Steven Smith is a capital as the colonel, working artistically with Miss Anglin, she was the young English woman approaching the limits of spinsterhood, plays the part to perfection. Maude Granger portrays the part of Miss Faraday's sister, a jolly aunt, to life. The other characters are most competently taken by Charles Cary, George Woodward, Ivo Dawson, Wallace Ford, Ruth Holt and Dorothy Lloyd, Lillie and Ruth Rose. Miss Rose give an effective little comedy bit early in the second act.

Globe.

"The Light Eternal" pleased a record-breaking audience at the Globe Theatre. This is the first appearance of the play in Boston. Eugenie Blair portrayed the leading character and upheld her reputation as one of the most versatile of the leading grade. She is cast as the Princess Artemisia, and in her various moods shows a sympathetic touch. Other characters are most competently taken by Charles Cary, George Woodward, Ivo Dawson, Wallace Ford, Ruth Holt and Dorothy Lloyd, Lillie and Ruth Rose. Miss Rose give an effective little comedy bit early in the second act.

2 CARLOADS OF CALVES SEIZED

Two carloads of calves shipped to Boston from New York have been seized and condemned as "bob" veal by the federal authorities here. The first carload arrived over the Albany railroad. Watertown butchers refused to handle the calves, and the shipment was sent to North Cambridge, where a butcher escorted them and declared to an inspector they were not from New York State but were local calves. Many of these were penned, although there was a suspicion that the shipment was not as had been represented.

For this reason greater diligence was stimulated, with the result that another carload of crated calves was located sidetracked at North Cambridge. They were shipped from Fort Plain, N. Y., by the party to whom they were consigned refused to accept them, and Boston & Albany Railroad officials called up a slaughtering house where they have a federal inspection and requested that the animals be slaughtered on their account, the price obtained to go toward defraying the freight charges.

This slaughtering company then notified the inspectors and the entire lot of calves was ordered destroyed.

"I Want That Man to Go Home Sober to His Family"

That Is What the Political Heeler Will Say as Soon as Women Are Able to Vote

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Women ought to vote, for thousands of reasons—and they WILL vote.

Here is one of the reasons.

Votes for women would compel pothouse politicians and other statesmen to think of the family as a WHOLE, instead of thinking only of the voting man in the family.

If politicians, little ward heelers and wholesale rascals that manage politics were compelled to think of women and women's votes, we should have better conditions at once, and first of all we should have less drunkenness.

To-day, around about election time, you can see some man a victim of drink in the hands of his politician "friends." They want his vote, they want to please him, so they get him drunk to please him.

If you should say to these politicians, "That man has a wife who needs his earnings for the home, he has grown daughters that are disgraced by his drunkenness," the politicians would say, "Well, what of it? You attend to YOUR business."

For, you see, the wife that grieves over the drunken husband has no vote. And the daughters that are disgraced by the drunken father also have no votes.

But if these women had the right to vote, what a change would come over the spirit of the ward heeler, and of the bosses that employ the heeler!

The last word of warning would be, "Whatever you do, see that the fathers of families get home sober. Stay with them till they get to their front door. Tell them you will make them lose their jobs if they get drunk until after election. Remember that the time has gone by when you can get votes by putting whiskey into a man. Now the women vote, and every man that you send home drunk means at least two women voting against you."

You now have politicians gathering the voters into the saloons and spending their money to make those voters drunk. If the mothers and daughters could vote, would you not have those same politicians going to the saloonkeepers and warning them under penalty of losing their licenses to see that the voters went home sober.

Votes for women might be a poor thing for the ward heeler whose only diplomacy consists in buying whiskey for fathers. And votes for women might be a very bad thing for the lower class of saloonkeepers that run disreputable places, encouraging drunkenness and impoverishing workmen.

But can any intelligent human being doubt that votes for women would be a blessing to all honest men, to all decent office seekers, to women and children and the whole of civilization?

Two Gentlemen Inquire: "What Did Woman Ever Do First, Ahead of Any Man?"

Woman, "First, and Ahead of Any Man," Created a Human Being. That Is Quite an Achievement.

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Two distinguished citizens, Joseph Daniz and Elias Rezinkoff, write to the AMERICAN.

They are somewhat puzzled by our praising of women. They do not believe, frankly, that woman has ever done very well, and they say:

"We cannot see what woman has ever accomplished, in the first instance, where man has failed. We know of great men inventors, to whose genius we owe all of our civilization, who suffered a great deal until their discoveries were recognized. Was there ever a woman in history who discovered anything or was ahead of man in anything?"

Many citizens have in their heads some such vague, half-muddled question as the above.

The answer is, decidedly yes. Woman HAS been in the past, and she IS to-day, ahead of man in one thing at least, and that the most important thing. Woman provides all of the children, all of the human beings, including the so-called great men that do most of the world's material work.

Before you had Thomas A. Edison you had to have Thomas A. Edison's mother. He has given the world some good inventions, but don't forget that Edison was HER invention and creation.

Before you had Beethoven, the greatest musician, you had to have Beethoven's mother, the poor servant woman, unknown and unrecognized until her son displayed her genius for her. He wrote beautiful sonatas and other things. He was HER sonata. She wrote him, and MADE him. And she took care of him afterward, fighting against the brutality of the drunken father. And there would not have been any Beethoven if the Beethoven genius had not been in the brain of Beethoven's mother.

So it is with all the great men so much admired and so much talked about. Each of them is the work, the invention, the creation, THE REFLECTION of some woman.

Buddha or Mahomet, Rockefeller or Jefferson, John Drew or J. Pierpont Morgan, Christopher Columbus or Tolstoi—every one of them represents some one thing that some one WOMAN could and did do and that no MAN could ever do.

There are two kinds of work in this world, work that is internal and work that is external. The work of woman is internal; it is greater that the work of man, but human beings half-civilized do not appreciate it and do not understand it. Ignorance and brutality see only the outward external work.

If you want a comparison to make this clear, go into the barnyard. See a rooster proudly scratching, crowing, flapping his wings and defying the hawk. See a hen walking up and down very plainly dressed, apparently doing nothing.

An ignorant earth worm would probably say: "My, that is a fine rooster; what wonderful genius and power! But that is an awful dull hen. I hope she does not consider herself a rooster's equal." Intelligence would say to the worm:

"Foolish earth worm, don't judge by appearances. While the rooster is scratching carefully and fussing around on the outside, that quiet hen is manufacturing an egg on the inside. If it were not for the eggs that she manufactures so quietly the farmer would soon close up the chicken yard."

So we say to geese that underestimate woman: Do not judge by external signs; do not be deceived by the crowing and bragging and self-importance of man, whose work is all on the outside. The energy and genius of woman are unseen, and their product is all that is great in the human race—the human race itself.

Something for Everyone

That's what you find in the Sunday AMERICAN. And not just "something," either; but a good deal for everyone. No other Sunday newspaper in New England can touch it.

Luck---the Hard Kind

By MILES OVERHOLT

I'M the guy who gets left when the train rumbles out,
And the guard, grinning, closes the gate,
And I swear at the man who with yodel and shout
Said the train was a half-hour late.

When a couple of men hold a fight on the street,
And I beg them to sing hymns with me,
The big, burly cop who covers that beat
Swats me twice—and the fighters go free.

When the "con" on the car has missed somebody's fare,
Who holds to his coin like a vise,
The "con" looks at me with a half-muttered swear,
And I, then, of course, must pay twice.

When depositors all get their cash—all but one—
When some one gets stuck in the moat,
When some guy must cry while the others have fun,
I am it—I am surely fate's goat.

Little Bobbie

He Writes About How He Talked Back

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I ALWAYS used to think that wimmen knew how to bring up there childern, sed Pa. Now I am beginning to know that such is not the case.

Why, sed Ma.

Oh, sed Pa, I was reeding a littel book yesterday that told all about the rite way to bring up children, & there wasent a singel rule in it that sounded like anything you ever did for littel Bobbie.

He looks pritty good & healthy, dosnt he? sed Ma. Oh, sed Pa, he seems to look all rite, but this book says that a lot of kids look good wen in reality there is sumthing wrong with them inside. You shud have told me long ago, wife, sed Pa, not to toss up a baby in the air & catch him aggeun. Lissen to this part of the book, Pa sed.

"Parents shud reefrain from exciting the already highly stimulated branes & nerves of a child."

Jest a minnit, sed Ma, are you sure it dosent say "Children shud reefrane from exciting the highly stimulated branes & nerves of ilare father?"

I dount want any comedy now, sed Pa, beekaus I am not feeling in the moode for it. Lissen to the rest of this chapter.

"An occasional frolic does the baby good, but the grown up folks dount seem to reelize this in moderation. The poor littel baby is tossed high in the air. His eyes start from his hed, almost, so grate is his excitement. His tiny arms is held out as he feels the strong arms receeve him aggeun, the baby gives a gasp with foolish parents think is a gasp of deelite. This is not good for the child."

You shud have toald me that long ago, sed Pa. Wen I used to be throwing Bobbie around in the air he seemed to like it, but now I know what maiks him sort of stupid.

I was always told never to talk back to my father & mother, so I didn't say a word, but I looked at Pa & dubbeled my fist.

Yes, sed Pa, Bobbie seems kind of sickly like. Yes, sed Ma, he must be sickly like. You know them three boys that beelongs to the janitor? Well, he licked the three of them this forenoon. I was looking out of the window & saw him do it, sed Ma, but I dident like to stop the unequal contest. Poor, sickly littel Bobbie, sed Ma. Why, my deer husband, she sed, if you had ever shown half the speed that yure son showed this morning we cud be living on Beacon street.

I dount like to contradick you, wife, sed Pa, but I dount beeleeve that Bobbie cud get a deeshun onver a cripple. He seems to be kind of dopy, & now I know why—I tossed him up in the air too much wen he was a baby. Poor littel Bobbie, Pa sed. I wish I had known more about how to bring up children wen I was first a proud father. Look at him, sed Pa, he has about as much ginger in him as a littel necked clam, & to think I done it all by throwing him up in the air and catching him.

Then I get so mad that I forgot all that Pa has told me about talking back, & I sed to him: Pa, I dount beeleeve that you did anything of the kind. If you used to cum hoam the saim way you cum hoam now, I dount think you cud catch me after you had tossed me up.

That is the only time I have ever talked back, but I think from the way Pa looked that I made up for lost time.
